LEGISLATURE OPENS SESSION

Hope Deferred.
Men Fear Death.
Jackson's "By the ETERNAL."
The Prize Hazard.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

"HOPE DEFERRED maketh the heart sick." That's in the Bible, and it is also in a decision handed down by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, telling Judge Clark, of New Jersey, that he was mistaken. The prohibition amendment was adopted legally. It stands, and is the law of the land. To which you may add that the amendment won't be repealed for many a day.

"MEN FEAR DEATH, as children fear to go in the dark, and as that natural fear in children is increased with tales, so is the other." So Bacon said of our most widespread fear.

Marshal Joffre, who has the gratitude of his nation following him to the grave, quoted often the saying Nul ne peut se dire heureux avant son dernier jour.

"DEATH HATH TEN thousand doors for men to take their exit." And they all lead to peace, rest, freedom from the world's worries, responsibilities and anxieties. It is fortunate for the race that divine wisdom makes us cling to life. If we were all as wise as Bacon and as philosophical as the old Greeks, many would be missing.

MAJ. GEN. BROWN, chief of Army engineers, says the United States government is virtually "at the mercy of the Alabama Power Company in disposing of Muscle Shoals power."

That statement should interest somebody.

When they told Andrew Jackson something like that concerning a great bank, his reply was that if there existed any such power he would crush it, "by the eternal," and he did.

ENGINEERS REPORT that the $171,547,000 St. Lawrence River power project, as now planned, will eliminate "about 75 per cent of the hazards incident to such construction."

The project, according to engineers, will develop 2,000,000 horsepower.

NOTHING COULD be more interesting or important, since power is everything in man's industrial work, equaling in importance fresh air and water.

The public would like to know about one hazard, however, namely, the hazard of having the power after the people build it fall into private hands. Will there be a private company in the United States charging one price for the power, and a publicly-owned company in Canada charging for the same power, exactly half the price charged in the United States? That is the situation at Niagara.

AN ENCYCLICAL to be issued by Pope Pius this week will reaffirm emphatically the Catholic doctrine on marriage, and is expected to express forceful disapprobation of birth control.

The Pope will stipulate in the case of marriages between Catholics and those of other religions, that the non-Catholic party to the marriage must guarantee that any children born will be brought up as Catholics, and that the right of the Catholic party to worship will not be interfered with.

Furthermore it will be the duty of the Catholic party to the marriage to pray unceasingly for the conversion of the non-Catholic party.

The Catholic Church has one peculiarity useful in maintaining your position. It does not change its mind.

IN BRITAIN, 20,000 weavers have started the kind of strike that, in the long run, can never succeed. They are not striking against lower wages; on the contrary, better wages are offered them. They are striking against an arrangement that would enable each man, without overwork, to take care of eight looms instead of four, and earn more. They say that if one man takes care of eight looms, that will put men out of work.

THAT'S WHAT stage coach drivers said when the locomotives came. Typesetters said it when linotype machines were invented. There are more printers than ever, better paid, and railroads employ 1,000 times as man as stage coaches ever did.

When the spinning jenny and other machinery came, it was necessary to build forts around mills to protect them from angry workmen, who said men would lose their jobs. Immediately 10 times as many were employed, since England proceeded to clothe millions in foreign lands.

But still workmen refuse to learn that greater production per man means greater wealth, wages and comforts in the long run for everybody.

THE BROOKLYN, N. Y., Young Women's Christian Association is engaged in proving that a young woman can buy enough food to keep herself for $1 a day. Let us hope that she can.

If it were impossible, what would become of the man that earns $4 a day or less, and must feed a wife and four or five children and pay rent, doctors' bills, buy clothes and shoes.

The main question today is, unfortunately, how can a man feed himself and his wife and his children who hasn't got even $1 a day?

TWO POSTAL ROBBERS ROUTED

Bakerstown Man Shoots at Pair Trapped in Store by Trick Alarm; Both Escape

A homemade burglar alarm system defeated two robbers and resulted in the shooting of at least one of the pair early today when they attempted to rob the Bakerstown postoffice.

The pair fled amid a hail of shots fired by Postmaster Carl Heckert, 37, who told police that he wounded one of the men.

State troopers, highway patrolmen and city police are watching hospitals and physicians' offices, believing the injured man may appeal for medical attention.

Aroused by a bell ringing in his bedroom, which informed him that someone was tampering with the gun case in his general store across the Butler pike, Heckert armed himself with a shotgun and a revolver. From across the road he saw lights and figures moving in the store.

FIRES AT PAIR

Heckert's wife, Hazel, turned on the store lights from the home and at the same time, Heckert fired a shot through the store window. The robbers ran to the front of the store and clambered through a window. As they did, Heckert opened fire with the shotgun. As the pair entered their automobile, Heckert continued to fire, emptying his revolver as they drove away. The men drove in the direction of Pittsburgh. City police and highway patrolmen guarded the roads leading into

FIRE SWEEPS APARTMENTS

Half a dozen families were routed from the three-story brick Negley apartments, 300 North Negley avenue, this afternoon by fire which originated in the apartment occupied by the Rev. Dr. Isaac K. Teal, pastor of the Tabernacle Presbyterian Church, on the third floor.

Three alarms summoned firemen who extinguished the flames before they communicated to the other twin apartment building. The loss was placed at $10,000.

Thomas C. Sproul, 90, who resides on the second floor with his son, William C. Sproul, and his daughter, Miss Helen Sproul, was alone at the time. He made his way through denses moke to the street.

Mrs. V. R. Garrett also ran to the street without her wraps. She and her aged neighbors were taken in by residents of the other apartment.

Principal damage was to the apartments of Dr. Teal and Miss Harriet A. Pool, both on the third floor. Other families forced to flee were those of T. V. Neidig and Ed B. Lytle. Occupants of the first and second floors suffered slight loss from water.

Dry Law Upheld; 'Case' to Reopen Fast as Delivered

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Eighteenth Amendment is back in constitution again.

Nobody missed it.

Judges Manton, Hand and Chase upheld the famous Eighteenth postscript.

Bootleggers aren't discouraged. They're sending to Canada for new evidence.

They will re-open the case as fast as it's delivered.

Seems strange that judges are just starting to argue about this matter.

People had settled it long ago. All that prohibition did to

ITALIAN SEA FLIERS LAND IN BRAZIL

International News Service.

NATAL, Brazil, Jan. 6.—Gen. Italo Balbo, Italian minister of air, brought his huge black seaplane down to the surface of the harbor here this afternoon, officially completing the first formation flight of history from Rome to Brazil.

The planes were sighted from Natal shortly before 2 p. m., eastern standard time, today.

The squadron of 11 planes, the first ever to span the South Atlantic Ocean in flying formation, swept gloriously in from the coast in splendid formation.

ONE FORCED DOWN

The "Black Squad," which was personally commanded by Gen. Italo Balbo, Italian minister of air, was well in the lead, followed by the "Greeen Squad" second, the "White Squad" third and the "Red Squad" bringing up the rear.

One plane had been forced down by engine trouble off Saint Peter Rocks, off the coast of Fernando Noronha, and its crew had been taken on board by an Italian cruiser patroling the course of the flight.

The 12 planes had averaged just over 100 miles an hour in their flight since they hopped off from Bolama, Portuguese Guinea, at 9 o'clock last night, eastern standard time. The distance to Natal is 1,850 miles.

GREETINGS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—The first message from the formation of Italian seaplanes flying from Rome to Brazil was given to the Brazilian government at 2:50 p. m. (12:50 p. m. eastern standard time) today, when the leading plane of the squadron wirelessed the greetings of Gen. Italo Balbo, leader of the flight.

RECORD BROKEN BY GIRL FLIERS

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Bobby Trout, Los Angeles aviatrix, and Edna May Cooper, Hollywood film actress and aviation enthusiast, established a new endurance flight record for women at 9:46 a. m. Pacific Coast Time today when they had flown their airplane, Lady Rolph, for 43 hours 16 minutes.

The girls have indicated they will continue in an effort to approach the 645-hour record held by Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brine, of St. Louis.

High winds and a heavy rainstorm late yesterday buffeted the Lady Rolph, the endurance ship.

For the second time in two days Miss Cooper yesterday proved equal to the task of cutting away an impediment to the plane's progress when she slashed away a message parachute that caught on the elevator in the ship's tail.

Appeal From Steel Merger Ban Denied

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 6.—Judge David G. Jenkins today overruled the motion for a rehearing in the proposed merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation. COAST STEAMER CRASHES IN FOG

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—A Long Island Sound steamship rammed a car float, a freighter sent out a distress call and maritime traffic from liners to ferries in New York harbor inched its way along today in a heavy fog.

The passenger ship George Washington, bound in from Boston, struck the car float in the East River, pitching three box cars into the river, disabling the float. The crash punched a hole in the steamer's bow. Tugs took the float in tow and the George Washington crept on toward her pier. Other steamers anchored below Hell Gate until the weather cleared.

The William N. Page, bound from Norfolk to Boston with coal, sent out an SOS saying she was aground near the Hamptons, Long Island, with 20 men aboard. Coast guards went to help her.

8 MEN KILLED IN MINE BLAST

GLEN ROGERS, W. Va., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Eight miners were believed to have met death today in an explosion in the Glen Rogers mine of the Raleigh Wyoming Mining Company.

The bodies of four of the victims were recovered several hours after the blast and rescue workers hoped to reach the four others reported missing later in the day. Officials of the mine had given up hope that any of them would be found alive.

Thirty-two miners escaped safely from the mine after the explosion, which occurred in a section about three-quarters of a mile away from the bottom of the shaft.

GOODNOUGH AND DAIX ELECTED

Both Houses Organize, Hear Fisher Message, Then Adjourn Until Jan. 19

By E. P. O'BRIEN,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 6.—With preliminary skirmishes now matters of political history, the General Assembly of Pennsylvania convened at noon today in its one hundred and twenty-ninth session.

The long-discussed battle for possession of the office of president pro tem of the Senate was ended, as was the detail of selecting House officers. The Senate battle ended last night when Republican senators selected Augustus F. Daix, Jr., of Philadelphia, as the choice of the party for president pro tem over Senator William D. Mansfield, of Allegheny County, by a vote of 24 to 22.

QUIET SESSION

A quiet, more or less routine legislative session was held today.

Meeting separately, Senate and House swore in new members, then proceeded to organization of the chambers on the basis of selections made in the party gatherings last night.

Daix was formally elected president pro tem of the Senate, receiving 46 votes to 4 cast by the Democrats for Senator Warren R. Roberts.

Daix was escorted to the rostrum to receive the oath of office administered by President Judge William M. Hargest, of the Dauphin County Court. Senators Mansfield and Roberts escorted Daix to the chair.

Upon being introduced to the Senate by Lieut. Gov. James, Senator Daix thanked the Senate for the honor conferred upon him.

GOODNOUGH SPEAKER

Representative C. J. Goodnough, of Cameron, was elected Speaker of the House of Representatives, receiving 184 votes, compared with 23 cast for the Democratic nominee, Representative Wilson G. Sarig, of Berks.

Baker Tells Britons Of U. S. Coal Plight

LONDON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—T. S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology, told the Oil Industries Club of London today that America's coal industry is in as desperate a situation as that of Great Britain. He said:

"We are uncertain whether the thousands of processes now being worked out by scientists for the treatment of coal can cure the industry, but certainly science is doing something."

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—John McCormack, Irish tenor, was scheduled to arrive here today from abroad. Other arrivals will be Gertrude Lawrence, English actress, and Count and Countess de Rivilla de Camargo.

Sculptor Jailed, Count's Fiancee Poses in Vain

Hopes that the bust of Miss Frances Kier, popular debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Kier, would be completed before sailing for Paris next week for her wedding to Baron Jean Pellene, of Paris, seemed further away today as the young sculptor commissioned to do the work, 28-year-old Nison Tregor, was under arrest in Detroit.

Tregor was arrested on a warrant from the office of Alderman George J. Anderson yesterday, charging he failed to pay a $445.89 hotel bill before leaving town December 24. The information was made by the William Penn Hotel. Tregor was not jailed in Detroit until efforts to raise the money had failed today.

During his sojourn here, Tregor completed a bust of James Francis Burke. While Miss Kier was posing, the sculptor became ill. Sittings were postponed and finally, when Miss Kier tried to reach Tregor, she found he had left town. She reflected today:

"I guess the bust will never be completed, for I am sailing a week from today with my mother and fiance for Europe and will be married next month in Paris."

Hit Hard, 'Numbers' Men Happy at Boom Outlook

Babies were to get new shoes. Mammas were to get new hats. Papas were to start wearing spats. And there was to be plenty of celebrating.

For Daniel had slain the lion, or, rather, 870 had slain the reluctance of the public to play on the new "numbers" lottery, based on New York Stock Exchange total daily sales, as numbers men saw it today.

Between $125,000 and $150,000 was due to be paid out to winners on one of the most popular of all numbers, just in Pittsburgh and the boroughs. Not only was it due to be paid out, but it was going to be paid out, and that gladly, according to reports.

For the public has been leary of the "numbers," as double after double came out in the wash, at only 300-1 odds. And there was feasting and singing of songs when the "big shots" saw a three-way combination—all three numbers different—come out yesterday.

First sign of new life in the racket came yesterday, when the pools reported the intake strengthened. Second was the popular hit, which sent the operators home with a lilt in their hearts and a song on their lips. One said:

"It was worth it. Now they'll see the game's straight and that we'll pay off. Nothing better could have happened."

OATH BINDING EMPLOYES TO LEAGUE FLAYED BY SENATORS

GENEVA PUT ABOVE OWN COUNTRIES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The League of Nations was flayed today by United States senators for setting up a super-government of which its League Court is the judicial department.

Revelations of the oath of allegiance which employes of the league were requested to take astounded the senators. The league officials were required, they said, countries, and pledge loyalty and above all, to the League of Nations.

Senator Hiram Johnson, Rep., of California, author of the League Covenant, and other foreign entanglements, declared:

"Has there ever been any doubt that the League of Nations is a super-state?"

"Of course if our country ever became a member we should be subjected to the super-state in all matters to which we subscribed in the league.

"The oath only emphasizes what we have always insisted and what is impossible of denial."

PLEDGED TO LEAGUE

The oath of allegiance and Article 1 of the regulations upon which it is based are as follows:

"I solemnly undertake to exercise, in conformity with Article 1 of the regulations, in all loyalty, discretion and conscience, the functions which have been entrusted to me as an official of the secretariat of the League of Nations."

Article 1 mentioned in the oath says:

"The officials of the secretariat of the League of Nations are exclusively international officials and their duties are not national, but international. By accepting appointment, they pledge themselves to discharge their functions and to regulate their conduct with the interests of the League alone in view. They are subject to the authority of the secretary-general, and are responsible to him in the exercise of their functions, as provided in these regulations. They may not seek or receive instructions from any government or other authority external to the secretariat of the League of Nations."

FORESWEAR OWN LANDS

When shown dispatches from Geneva regarding the oath of allegiance and the text of the oath as given above, Senator Henrik Shipstead (F.-L.) of Minnesota, said:

"This oath conclusively shows that the League of Nations is a super-government and not merely a representative of the various governments signatory to the League covenant.

"It is a separate and distinct super-government created by the treaty of Versailles. It is a creation of the allied nations signatory to the treaty of Versailles and other nations which signed articles of adhesion. These nations by so doing yielded jurisdiction over questions specifically assigned to the League.

"The League is an independent international super-government with legislative, executive and judicial departments, the latter being the League's Court, which we are now asked to join.

"Of course, like any other government, the League would require an oath of allegiance and loyalty to it and to no other government but the League.

"It is my opinion that to the extent officials swear loyalty and allegiance to the League of Nations they foreswear their loyalty and allegiance to the country of their previous sovereignty."

Senator Nye (Rep.) of North Dakota said:

"The oath is not surprising in view of the contention repeatedly made that membership in the League of Nations would cost the United States a serious measure of its independence as a nation."

POWER BOARD AGAIN SCORED IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The Senate disputed again over the Power Commission today.

Senator Hastings, of Delaware, an administration Republican, challenged the Senate's authority to reconsider the nominations of Chairman Smith and Commissioners Draper and Garsaud as proposed by Walsh of Montana. Walsh, a Democrat, insisted in his stand.

Hastings said he did not believe the Senate could remove any nominee from office after he had been confirmed and administered the oath of office except by impeachment.

Walsh said the Senate had not given its final approval until the time had expired for moving reconsideration under the Senate's rules.

Senator Barkley (Dem.), of Kentucky, said he also doubted the Senate's authority, although he said the commissioners had dismissed Charles A. Russell and William V. King, employes, under "suspicious circumstances." Walsh said the commissioners had dismissed the employes with "indecent haste" and termed "mere pretense" the reason given that there was friction among the employes of the commission, Walsh said:

"There was friction between Mr. Russell and Frank A. Bonner, the executive secretary, and there was friction between Mr. King and Mr. Bonner. But no inquiry whatever was made to determine whether Russell and King were right. For all we know, they were right. Bonner was quitting and that would have removed the friction. There must have been some other reason."

Senator Goff (Rep.), of West Virginia, denied the President was responsible either directly or indirectly for the dismissal of Russell and King. He joined Hastings in challenging the Senate's authority to reconsider the nominations.

Lucas Repays Loan, Borrows From Nutt

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The Senate campaign funds committee learned from Robert H. Lucas today that the $4,000 loan to him—about which the committee has been so curious—has been repaid.

The executive director for the Republicans was testifying again on his use of the borrowed money to oppose Senator Norris for re-election. The loan was secured by a $50,000 account in the name of the party's national committee.

As for the repayment, Lucas said he had borrowed $3,500 from J. R. Nutt, Republican treasurer, for that purpose. The note was taken up only last Friday.

The party director took the stand after officials of the Commercial National Bank, in which the account was located, had told of granting him the loan and had been questioned as to the regularity of the method by which it was secured.

Abe Splain, 19, of 2563 Allquippa street, was identified today as one of the four bandits who held up the Corliss Cream Company, 1762 West Carson street, on November 14, and escaped with $2,500 cash.

Splain was picked from a group of 15 men today by P. H. Laffey, manager of the creamery company, as one of the four bandits who held him up.

RELIEF QUIZ OPENS IN SENATE

Investigation Will Determine Adequacy of Hoover's Program for Unemployed

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The plight of America's army of unemployed was under investigation today by the Senate Appropriations Committee in an effort to determine whether the Hoover administration's relief program will prove adequate.

While the committee questioned government authorities on the extent and adequacy of federal relief operations the Democratic-Insurgent coalition served notice it would battle to retain the $15,000,000 food loan appropriation in the administration's drought relief bill. As it passed the Senate, the bill carried a total appropriation of $60,000,000, of which $45,000,000 will go for feed and seed loans in drought states.

ACTION FOLLOWS RIOTS

The $15,000,000 food loan provision was added to the bill by the Senate as a result of reports of food riots in Arkansas. This situation prompted Senator Caraway (Dem.), of Arkansas, to insist upon the government providing a fund for food loans. He declared the American Red Cross was not providing adequate relief and, even if it were, pioneer Americans should not be forced to "beg or starve."

Payne told the committee that the Red Cross has spent $849,965 for drought relief; it stands ready to spend much more, and if its funds are exhausted it will appeal to the American people.

250,000 AIDED

Judge Payne told the senators clothing and food had been given 49,963 families, or about 250,000 individuals, in 17 states at a cost to December 31 of $520,802, in addition to the distribution of pasturage and other seed at a cost of $329,162.

The program is being financed through local donations of cash and supplies, supplemented by grants from the disaster reserve of the national organization, Payne said:

"If the winter continues mild, if employment opens up in some fields and if the government's agricultural loan program meets a large portion of the need in connection with the spring planting, the balance of this reserve will probably be sufficient."

DROUGHT DEADLOCK

While the Senate hearing was going on the $45,000,000 drought relief bill was temporarily deadlocked in the House when efforts to send it to conference with the Senate were blocked by three members.

The bill, with its $15,000,000 amendment to permit purchase of food for farmers in drought stricken areas, remained on the Speaker's table to await further action.

Representatives La Guardia (Rep.), of New York; Patterson (Dem.), of Alabama, and Sabath (Dem.), of Illinois, voiced the objections. La Guardia served notice he would fight the Caraway $15,000,000 amendment for food loans unless it were made applicable to city dwellers as well as to farmers.

FALL HEARING POSTPONED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Hearings of appeals of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of Interior, and Harry M. Blackmer, convicted in connection with the Teapot Dome oil lease scandals, today were postponed by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals until February 2.

The postponement was ordered to permit Judge D. Lawrence Groner, recently appointed to the court by President Hoover, to take his seat.

Fall was sentenced to a year in prison and to pay a $100,000 fine. Blackmer, former chairman of the Mid-West Oil Company, was fined $60,000 for contempt of court. He has remained abroad and refused to answer a court summons to testify.

GIRL MURDERED IN BAKERY

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The body of a 19-year-old girl was found today in the rear of a bakery where she was employed, her head crushed. The girl, Doris Reiling, had opened the store a short time before she was found dead.

A driver for the bakery firm entered the store to deliver some bread and cakes. When the girl failed to appear behind the counter he searched the store.

Miss Reiling's body lay on the floor and beside it was an overturned chair. Police said the chair may have been the weapon that crushed her skull.

AMY TO QUIT PEIPING HOP

LONDON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Amy Johnson, the aviatrix today told the Evening Standard by telephone from Warsaw that she may abandon her solo flight to Peiping across Siberia. She said:

STORM DELAYS FLYING WIDOW

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The monoplane Trade Wind rested in a hangar today while its crew, Mrs. Beryl Hart, red-haired widow, and Lieut. William S. MacLaren, awaited an Atlantic coast storm to subside before taking off for Bermuda en route to Paris.

The fliers announced last night the Bermuda leg would be started Wednesday instead of this morning on account of severe weather off the North America mainland.

The freight-carrying plane has been here since Saturday night when it came in unexpectedly at the naval station after a futile attempt to reach Bermuda from New York. Repairs were made here to the plane's damaged sextant and to its engine which had developed a slight oil leak. Some delay was encountered yesterday in getting $400 for new parts on the sextant, but the fliers announced later that financial arrangements had been made.

Grain Bill Seeks To Curb Futures

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—A new federal grain trading law prohibiting future trading by foreign governments and limiting future trading by American concerns was proposed today in the House by Representative Dickinson (Rep.), of Iowa, and in the Senate by Senator Capper (Rep.), of Kansas. The bill would curb speculative dealing in grains, provide special licenses for merchants or brokers dealing in futures and give the Secretary of Agriculture wide authority over future transactions.

MELLON BRIDE'S FATHER SUED

E. H. Rowley, father-in-law of William Larimer Mellon, Jr., was on trial in Criminal Court today on a charge of fraudulent conversion.

Mrs. Gertrude S. Warren, of 316 Sheridan avenue, the wife of W. W. Warren, director of the East End Trust Company, took the stand to support her charge that Rowley, having traded for her in the stock market, still owes her $6,000. Assistant District Attorney Jarrett promised to introduce 15 letters in which Rowley admitted the debt.

In outlining the case Prosecutor Jarrett told the jury that Rowley had been wiped out in the market crash of October, 1929, and had also lost Mrs. Warren's money, which was in his name.

Rowley made a profit of nearly $12,000 for Mrs. Warren in General Motors, sent her a check for $5,000, but still owes $6,000, Jarrett contended.

Jarrett added:

"Mr. Rowley used that $6,000 to satisfy his own account with brokers."

The case was listed for trial November 5, two weeks before the date announced for the wedding of Rowley's daughter, Grace, to the scion of the Mellons. Trial was postponed on representations to District Attorney A. T. Park that efforts toward a settlement were in progress, Park said today.

Society circles were startled by announcement on the day preceding the date set for the Rowley-Mellon nuptials, November 19, that the two had been secretly wed in Wellsburg, W. Va., November 16, 1929.

Railroads, Auto Factories Give Jobs to Thousands

Associated Press.

The return to work of many thousands of workers was noted today in dispatches coming from various sections of the country. Railway shops and automobile factories were chiefly affected.

In Chicago Vice-President Frank Walters of the Chicago and Northwestern announced that 7,000 men were returned to work yesterday along the entire system on a three-day-a-week basis, while from Detroit came reports that automobile plants in Michigan had re-engaged 22,000 employes. The River Rouge plant of the Ford Motor Company recalled 6,500; the East Windsor Ford plant, 5,000; the Cadillac Company, 6,000, and the Buick Company at Flint, 4,500.

Between 600 and 800 shopmen on the Monon lines were returned to work on a temporary basis in Chicago, and reports from other sections told of additional good news for railway shop workers. These included the return of 2,800 men by the Norfolk and Western at Roanoke, Va.; 1,200 by the Missouri Pacific at Sedalia, Mo.; 1,000 by the New York Central at East Buffalo and Depew, N. Y., and 850 by the Southern Pacific at El Paso, Tex.

J. E. Dyer, vice president in charge of operations of the Southern Pacific Railroad, announced in San Francisco the return of 8,500 employes from part-time work to the full-time payroll.

After a period of curtailed operations, 750 men were returned to work yesterday at the Ford Motor Company assembly plant in Denver.

Government Ownership Opposed by Coolidge

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 6.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Another proposal to be made in the name of relieving unemployment will undoubtedly be an extension of government ownership. Healthy and normal employment consists of serving another for his personal satisfaction or profit.

Calvin Coolidge

As the government is not personal, its proper business employment would be for those serving for its profit. Public works are on a different footing and need not be considered.

For the wage earners to benefit in time of general depression it would be necessary to assume that government ownership would prevent fluctuations in the business in which it engages. Our largest government business is the postoffice, in which the receipts rise and fall extensively.

If it is assumed that payment of wages will go on without work, that is not employment but relief. Then no one should work.

The government has never shown much aptitude for real business. The Congress will not permit it to be conducted by a competent executive, but constantly intervenes. The most free, progressive and satisfactory method ever devised for the equitable distribution of property is to permit people to care for themselves by conducting their own business. They have more wisdom than any government.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

the city, but the pair eluded them.

Heckert and Corp. Moore, of the state highway patrol, made a search of the store and postoffice. Blood stains indicated that at least one of the men had been wounded. Heckert said he believed he had shot both of them. He said one of the men staggered when he reached the pavement, and Heckert believes he heard the man cry, as if hurt.

POSTAL FUNDS INTACT

A search of the store revealed that $3 had been taken from the cash register and merchandise valued at $10 stolen. An attempt had been made to break into the quarters of the postoffice, where $1,500 was kept in the stamp drawer.

Heckert had fashioned a burglar alarm that was set off when the robbers attempted to open a gun case. Heckert said he did not summon help before trying to trap the men, as he thought at first the alarm had been set off accidentally.

The burglars were trailed as far as Bardona Heights, about three miles away. One man reported seeing a car moving zigzag across the road. The only description police have of the pair is that they escaped in a coupe. On the back of the automobile a bicycle was strapped, Heckert told police.

ASK OFFICIAL STATUS AT FUNERAL

Accorded Recognition With Pershing at Fetes for Foch; All France Honors Leader

International News Service.

PARIS, Jan. 6.—Representatives of the American Legion in Paris today cabled to the State Department at Washington appealing to the department to request French permission for the Paris American Legionnaires to march in the Joffre funeral procession as official United States troops.

The cable was forwarded after the French war ministry had refused the legionnaires' direct request, on the grounds that the legion is a war veterans' organization, and therefore is eligible only to a place among other veterans' organizations.

The legionnaires are content with this ruling except that they fear a misunderstanding would result if the United States were not represented by official troops in the procession, and point out that they were accorded recognition as official troops when they marched with Gen. Pershing in the funeral procession of Marshal Ferdinand Foch, generalissimo of Allied armies in France during the latter days of the World War.

FRANCE PAYS HOMAGE

Meanwhile, as all France continued to pay homage to Marshal Joffre and thousands again filed past his bier in the chapel of the Ecole Militaire for a last glimpse of the beloved warrior, military authorities today prepared measures to assure against any possible marring of the ceremonies at the Arc de Triomphe this evening and the state funeral tomorrow.

All access to the great circle in the heart of Paris, where the coffin will halt beside the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier for five minutes while on its way to the Cathedral of Notre Dame, has been strictly forbidden except to those authorized within its area.

At 9 o'clock tonight, escorted by a squadron of cavalry, the cortege will leave the Ecole Militaire and continue to the Arc de Triomphe. Silence will fall upon the vast throng expected there as the coffin is drawn into the circle of floodlight and brought to a five-minute halt on the spot alongside the unknown soldier's grave where many times the Marshal raised his hand in reverent salute in days after the war.

SALVO OF 21 GUNS

And as in those anxious days of September in 1914, when Paris heard the muttering of invading guns on the horizon and placed its trust in the hands of "Papa" Joffre, so again will the guns be heard in Paris this evening. As the cortege starts away from the Arc de Triomphe, a salvo of 21 guns will be fired.

The body will lie in state in Notre Dame Cathedral throughout the night, with funeral services scheduled for 9 a. m. Wednesday. Cardinal Verdier will officiate at the funeral mass.

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong today is wearing a broad smile as a result of the election of Daix.

All Armstrong Senior has to do today was to witness the sweating in of Joseph O. Jr., along with the other new and re-elected senators, and then go home and tell his constituents how it all happened.

It was the two votes that Armstrong had in his pocket that decided the caucus battle. During the calling of the roll there were three defections that knocked State Chairman Edward Martin's prediction of 27 or more votes into a cocked hat.

PLEASED AT OUTCOME

When the name of Richard W. Williamson of Huntington, was called and he cast the deciding vote for Daix, Armstrong smiled his broadest. All he had to say for publication was:

"I am pleased at the result of the caucus. It shows that the Senate will do its own deciding on matters concerning it."

Until late yesterday, when the train carrying Senators Joseph G. Armstrong Jr. and Herman P. Brandt arrived, the day was devoid of much activity on the part of the Allegheny County delegation and its leaders. But when the train pulled in, "smart politics" was played by the Armstrong forces in rapid-fire fashion. Brandt and Armstrong were whisked away from the station after Brandt shook hands with John W. Vickerman, C. V. Shoup, president of the West View Board of Trade, and Councilman Walter Skiles, of West View. They were there to argue, but had no opportunity.

DELEGATION FAILS

Brandt was registered at the Columbus Hotel. A delegation from his senatorial district, the Fortieth, called there but was unable to see him. The delegation included Louis Hagmeier, Representative Thomas Neely, John Schroeder, chairman of the legislative district, Attorney Frank I. Gollmar, Shoup, Skiles and Vickerman. They were much perturbed at being unable to arrange a conference.

Senator Brandt issued a statement after it was all over, saying:

"By my vote tonight I simply reaffirmed my position taken at the close of the last session of the General Assembly, when I joined in the unanimous election of Senator Daix for this office. I found nothing in this situation to warrant breaking the precedent of re-electing the president pro-tempore.

"Following the primaries last May, Gen. Edward Martin was re-elected state chairman and Commissioner Armstrong Allegheny County chairman. It is to these men I look for leadership. I found them supporting Senator Daix. My action in the caucus has no bearing on the position I will take on legislation coming before the Senate. I will give every consideration to Gov. Pinchot's proposals and each question will be decided on its merits."

DIVIDED ON EFFECT

Observers here are divided in their opinion as to the effect of the losing fight Gov.-elect Gifford Pinchot waged against Daix.

Some say the Daix victory means the foresters pet bills will now be dumped into the hopper and never get out. They look for a session that will last well into the summer and the blocking of the legislative program that Pinchot made up his campaign "against Gen. Atterbury and the Philadelphia gang."

Others declare Pinchot won more by losing the Mansfield-Daix contest than he would have gained by winning it. Paradoxical as this sounds, there is an element of reason in it according to many political sages.

POINT TO ALIBI

They point out that by losing Pinchot has the "perfect alibi" and every time one of his pet pieces of legislation falls by the wayside he can blame it on the "Philadelphia gang" and the Armstrong - Mellon combination. The loss of this fight in the opinion of those who think Pinchot has his eye on the White House is the best thing for him that could happened.

REFORMS URGED IN OHIO TAXES

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Development of a taxation system and a welfare program carrying out the recommendations of his special welfare committee were subjects stressed most by Gov. Cooper in his final message to the general assembly today.

Chief among specific recommendations made were:

Legislation calling for the use of non-explosive films in all X-ray developments and destruction of all explosive films now in the files of the state industrial commission — these recommendations being made as a result of the Cleveland clinic disaster.

Revision of the workman's compensation law to require the state and political subdivisions to contribute sufficiently for their injured workmen and to insure equal protection for dependents of all persons killed in industry.

Enlarging the educational units of the state.

ALMA RUBENS ARRESTED

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Alma Rubens, former screen favorite, who was released from a state asylum a year ago as cured of drug addiction, was in jail today awaiting a hearing on a federal charge of possessing narcotics.

Miss Rubens was arrested at a hotel here yesterday after her companion on a trip to Agua Caliente, Ruth Palmer, complained to police the actress had beaten her. Police said they found 40 cubes of a narcotic sewn into one of Miss Rubens' gowns when they searched her room.

Laura La Plante's Grandfather Dies

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 6.—(AP)—John Tuck, 85, died yesterday at the home of his granddaughter, Laura La Plante, motion picture actress, with whom he had lived several years. Tuck was a native of Illinois.

Navy Stands Pat On Ousting Middies

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—The Navy Department intends to "stand pat" on its "hard-boiled" discipline to bring midshipmen at the U. S. Naval Academy, Secretary of the Navy Adams wrote the House Naval Affairs Committee today.

He vigorously denounced the bill of Representative Wigglesworth that would require the department to reinstate Lawrence I. Myatt, Quincy, Mass., and Miller S. Burn, Jacksonville, Fla., dismissed for smuggling two Washington society girls into the academy mess hall last year.

Flowers Bank Senate, House as Session Opens

HARRISBURG, Jan. 6.—The State Senate and House of Representatives resembled flower shows as much as legislative chambers today at the opening of the 1931 session of the Pennsylvania General Assembly.

Shortly before being sworn in Senator Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., presented the resolution to notify the House of Representatives that the Senate was in order and ready to proceed with business.

Senator W. D. Mansfield presented the resolution authorizing the president pro tempore of the Senate, Augustus F. Daix, Jr., to appoint the standing committees.

Senator Frank J. Harris introduced the formal resolution that the 1931 session proceed under the Senate rules of 1929.

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong posed for photographs with Joseph G., Jr., at his desk in the Senate.

Nine new Senators were sworn in. They are: Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., of Allegheny; Leroy A. Chapman, of Warren; Charles H. Cupp, Jr., of Franklin; John W. Powell, of Lackawanna; William D. Pethick, of Wayne; William S. Rial, of Westmoreland; Henry L. Snyder, of Lehigh; Fred M. Sprout, of Lycoming, and Joseph C. Trainer, of Philadelphia. Three of these—Rial, Clippinger and Trainer—were named at special elections to fill unexpired terms, while the others are full-term senators.

Gov. Fisher posed in the rostrum of the House for photographers well in advance of the opening of the session.

Few changes were made in the seating arrangements of the coveted front seats in the hall of the House. Representative C. J. Goodnough gave up his seat No. 12 in the front row, when named for the speakership, and Representative Alexander R. Wheeler, of Forest, advanced from the second row to the Goodnough seat.

The arrival of State Senator Joseph C. Trainer, of Philadelphia, at the State Capitol was the most spectacular seen here in years.

Ferko's string band, fantastically dressed and parading and providing music, delighted the crowds as it did in the Mummers' parade in Philadelphia on New Year's Day.

The familiar face and voice of Quay R. Hewitt, of Punxsutawney, reading clerk of the House, was missing when the House came to order. Hewitt, taken suddenly and seriously ill recently, will have no share in the calling of the roll this session. Pending selection of a new reading clerk by the House Republican State Committee, Hewitt's place was taken by his assistant, O. F. Martin, Smithville, Lancaster County.

The General Assembly was formally announced in the rotunda of the Capitol at 11:30 in behalf of the Boy Scouts of Pennsylvania by Scout George J. Wirt, champion bugler of the Harrisburg area.

Scout Wirt, a son of George J. Wirt, chief of the Bureau of Forest Protection in the State Department of Forests and Waters, sent out his notes loud and clear to announce the opening of 1931 session of the Assembly.

FISHER CITES $29,000,000 SURPLUS

Built Up State Finances, Governor Points Out in Message Reviewing Term

HARRISBURG, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Gov. John S. Fisher today gave an account of his stewardship as head of the state government for the past four years to the General Assembly and the people of Pennsylvania.

Before a joint session of the Legislature on its opening day, the Governor reported:

1—That at the end of his administration the state had a surplus in the treasury conservatively estimated at $29,000,000.

2—That approximately $635,295,000 was expended by the state government during the last four years.

3—That the reorganization and centralization of various tax-collecting agencies and disbursement agencies had proved eminently successful.

4—That approximately $39,000,000 had been expended in the greatest public building program in the state's history.

5—That the capacity of the state's welfare institutions had been increased by one-half.

6—That more than 4,000 miles of roads had been constructed in the last four years.

FEW RECOMMENDATIONS

The governor's last message to the legislature was almost devoid of recommendations. An exception was made in his reference to law and order in the commonwealth when he said that recommendations that have been made for legislation to strip the criminal of his weapons and tools and to make the machinery of justice quick and certain are "the voice of wisdom born of experience and should be heeded."

The governor expressed unbounded faith and confidence in Pennsylvania, asserting "that there is health in her bones and strength in her sinews to meet and master all the problems of the future."

Explaining the expenditure of $39,000,000 for construction, the governor said that $15,851,901 had been spent on welfare plants. On June 1, 1927, he said, the welfare institutions had a capacity of 18,053 patients and at completion of additions and new buildings now under contract, they will have a capacity of 23,617.

HIGHWAY EXPENDITURES

Of highway work, the Governor said:

"The Highway Department during the past four years expended a total of $235,062,215.45, of which $14,943,365.96 was left over from the bond sale of the Pinchot administration. The major road work covered 4,028 miles of new construction, of which 3,021 miles was new pavement, 495 miles replacements, and 512 miles resurfacing of worn-out roads. The year 1930 is pointed to as the banner year in road building, the program of 1,300 miles set up in advance of the construction season having been practically completed."

AIDED JOBLESS

The only reference to unemployment was the statement that the state has found positions for 160,000 workers. Through changes in workmen's compensation rates in 1929 the awards in the second biennium of the Fisher administration increased $3,600,000, although the number of accidents decreased.

The chief executive's only reference to the business depression was in his comment upon "the able and efficient manner" in which the banking and insurance departments have been conducted. In the past four years, he said, the banks, building and loan associations and many types of insurance companies have shown tremendous growth and their prosperity has tided them over with remarkably few failures through the months of adversity.

The Roosevelt Memorial Association, of which Gifford Pinchot is chairman, will meet to plan reorganization work for the coming year.

A mild form of intestinal flu has become widespread in Pittsburgh, it was revealed here today in a checkup with the medical profession.

The ailment is mild in effect and lasts usually only a day or so. Physicians consulted are of the opinion that the ailment is not caused by water or any of its chemical properties. Rather, they declare, it is a condition brought about the weather.

Rhode Island G. O. P. Proposes Wine, Beer

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Amendment of the Sherwood law to provide light wines and beers for Rhode Island, and a memorial to Rhode Island senators and congressmen urging repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment were provided in legislation introduced by members of the Republican majority in the House and Senate here today as the 1931 Assembly convened.

WESTMORELAND BOROUGHS JOIN

Parnassus became a part of New Kensington last night when members of both borough councils joined in the presence of 350 citizens, who overflowed the capacity of the New Kensington councilmanic chambers. The annexation was voted at the November election.

The united council is composed of 21 members, of which nine are from Parnassus. H. K. Glowes, of New Kensington, was unanimously re-elected president of council, while George Zimmerman, of New Kensington, was named vice president. C. D. Armstrong, of Parnassus, was named borough secretary. Police Chief D. J. Zeloyle, Fire Chief Edward Clawson and Borough Treasurer Burns Smith were re-elected.

Fred Fredericks, of New Kensington, was elected high constable.

Naming of the remaining borough employes is scheduled to be made at a meeting of Council Friday night.

Celebration of the union of the two boroughs will take place next Monday night, when the New Kensington Chamber of Commerce will hold a banquet.

Veteran County Worker Begins 51st Year

Allegheny County's oldest clerical employe—"Uncle John" Taylor, today began his fifty-first year as docket clerk in the prothonotary's office at the City-County Building. He will be 79 this month.

Recalling events of the past in Pittsburgh he said:

"When I first began my work with the county there were only four judges, instead of the 14 on the bench today. The leading attorneys in those days were Philander C. Knox, Tom Marshall and D. T. Watson.

"They used to declare a holiday in the old days when there was a hanging."

RAMP FOR NEW POSTOFFICE UP TO CITY

Cost Shunned by Federal Authorities; Grant Street Entrance Plan Shelved

If Pittsburgh wants a traffic ramp from Grant street into the new postoffice and federal building, it will have to purchase the necessary property and build the ramp itself, government authorities yesterday informed local traffic officials. Treasury Department officials agree such a ramp should be built but refuse to include provisions for it in planning the new building.

In a letter to Frank L. Duggan, chairman of the Better Traffic Committee, Acting Supervising Architect James A. Wetmore of the United States Treasury Department declared his department had no intention of fitting the vehicular requirements of the $8,000,000 postal building to the street traffic system.

AGREEMENT IN DISCARD

This letter, Duggan said, substantiates the Traffic Committee's fears that its agreement with Treasury officials last May for the entrance of vehicular traffic to the new building on a ramp from Grant street, rather than from Seventh avenue, has been discarded. The Grant street ramp had the support of the committee and Trowbridge and Livingston, government architects for the building.

The traffic committee's suggestion of building the street entrance to the new building from Grant street, rather than from Seventh avenue, had been based upon a series of street traffic surveys and analyses by the city Bureau of Traffic Planning and other city departments.

CONGESTION STRESSED

The surveys, presented to the government engineers, took into consideration present congestion of Seventh avenue during peak periods and any possible future relief and traffic growth factors.

The proposal to ban parking on Seventh avenue between Grant street and Liberty avenue to relieve present congestion on Seventh avenue, and other possible traffic conditions which may arise in connection with the new postoffice, will be discussed at a general meeting of the traffic committee Thursday at 1:30 p. m. in the council committee rooms.

Death Threat Adds To Murder Mystery

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—A death threat received by a girl friend of Beulah Limerick today added to the complications encountered by police in trying to solve the murder of the 19-year-old theater usherette.

Mary Ale was the girl who, police said, had found a note threatening her life. It was wrapped in a man's handkerchief and crammed into her mail box. While investigating this development the authorities decided to bring Patrolman Robert F. Langdon, held in connection with the Limerick murder, before a coroner's jury.

WOMEN ACTIVE AS JEWS VOTE

JERUSALEM, Palestine, Jan. 6— (AP.)— Women took an unprecedented part in the election for the Assefat Hanivcharim, Palestine Jewish Assembly, the first such balloting since the Jewish community was placed on a democratic basis in 1928.

The women, heading ticket headed by the noted leader, Henrietta Szold, aroused opposition particularly from the Sephardic Rabbis, who warned their followers that voting would be sinful because women were participating in the case.

Jerusalem had a holiday appearance all day. Excited but good-humored crowds thronged the streets.

The main issue was whether the Zionist leaders should negotiate with the British government on the basis of the White Paper which was issued last October and aroused world-wide Jewish resentment.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 6— (AP.)—Pupils in grade and high schools throughout Arkansas returned to their work after the Christmas holidays to find an addition to their curricula of a reverent reading of the English Bible.

Sponsored by the Moral Culture League of Arkansas, the law makes it mandatory on teachers in all public schools to read a brief passage from the King James version of the Bible each morning, but without comment.

PASTOR AND KIN HELD IN ARSON

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 6— (AP.)—The Rev. William J. Frary, 65, Methodist minister, and his nephew, Robert Frary, 22, were held on arson charges after the Rev. Mr. Frary had confessed, according to police, that his home near here was burned last August 16 to collect $4,000 insurance.

Police said Robert Frary denied knowledge of such an arson plot, but that his uncle's confession had implicated him.

The Rev. Mr. Frary signed an agreement recently to settle the insurance claim for $2,050, officers said, but the money has not been paid.

REDS STIR MINE STRIKERS

LONDON, Jan. 6— (AP.)— Soft coal operators were talking Communism in the South Wales coal fields, and it became obvious there was a grave danger of disorder among the 140,000 miners, idle since New Year's Day because of wage disputes with the mine owners.

Their spokesmen conferred here with Emmanuel Shinwell, the minister of mines, and William Graham, president of the Board of Trade, who later talked things over with Ramsay MacDonald and issued an invitation to the owners to come here for a meeting today.

The owners accepted and both sides agree that unless some compromise comes out of this meeting hopes for peace in the industry are slim indeed.

Up in Burnley, center of the textile industry, another industrial crisis reached the breaking point and 3,500 weavers walked out of nine cotton mills as a protest against the owners' demands that each weaver double the number of looms in his charge.

50 in Peril as Ship Hits Coast in Fog

DUNGENESS, England, Jan. 6— (INS.)—The British steamer Nutfield, a 6,500-ton ship, crashed ashore today in a dense fog off the coast here and broke up.

Lifeboats from the Coast Guard stood by to take off the crew of 50 men. The ship is believed to be a total loss.

Dry Law Wins; 'Cases' Reopen When Delivered

By Arthur 'Bugs' Baer

drinking was to add romance to it.

Because it's one of this matter quickly. When you feed a stray cat more than twice it's yours.

Judge Clark's decision still stands. You can pick out the [illegible] you like best. Or you can take both. And run between them.

Trouble with our law is that our framers didn't all study out of the same book.

Score is now one to one. Hundred million people on base, Judge Clark at bat again.

We haven't quite figured out Prof. Dewey's third party, but it looks as if the country must go through the throes of being saved all over again.

It will be almost two years as the crow flies before we make the blindfold test on an election cigar.

The Democrats were our first political organization. It was founded by Jefferson on the theory that the office seeks the man.

The Republicans were launched when some brilliant economist figured that if the office seeks the man it might as well seek two.

Now the third party comes along to complicate matters which will not arrive until November, 1932. Then we will have three men for every office. And we don't require that many any more than a lunch wagon needs spare tires.

We don't know what a college professor would do in the White House. The first thing he would do is to look at the main building and then ask:

"Where's the football stadium?"

Football is another subject that has been taken up seriously by college heads. Doc Nicholas Murray Butler objects to the ratio of one student to every huddle.

If the doc has had any experience with gymnasium and Latin classes he should know that the only way to eliminate college football is to make it compulsory.

But it seems that professors are about running the nation. Maybe not exactly running it, but they have a good deal to do with events. That is, when anything happens there always a newspaper statement by a college prexy or law school dean.

In other words, whenever something big occurs, a professor can always write a treatise telling you all about it. But not how to avoid it.

But there is one good feature about a professor in the White House. We would know what the senators were doing after the teacher started writing notes to their guardians.

Can you picture an old line politician showing up in the Senate one morning with his parents.

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The most popular attractions on the air are those programs and personalities that possess the human touch. It is this quality, more than any other, that distinguishes a great from a mediocre broadcast.

Save when they are engaged in a presidential campaign and the fire of attack is in their voices or when they occupy the picturesque benches of a spelling bee, the majority of United States senators seldom display the human touch on the radio.

The invisible armchairs seem to make them all too conscious of the microphone or their manuscripts or their traditional dignity.

* * *

There are, of course, exceptions. Pat Harrison and George H. Moses, leading goat-getters of the Upper House, are invariably humanly interesting on their air journeys. They can, when occasion demands, command a superlative sneer. They can throw off satiric jabs as a third rail throws off sparks. And when necessary they can let loose a word or two of comic relief.

* * *

Of all the members of the Senate, Borah unquestionably has the best oratorical style. He speaks not only with ease but with conviction, and his voice is deep and resonant. Yet even he, when he sets out on the radio sea, rarely presents that aspect of humaneness which was of such aid to Hoover in 1928.

* * *

Most of the Senators, when they face the microphone, are solemn and pontifical, reading prepared speeches, from which most of the glow and drama, which they bring to their debates, has been removed. Rarely do they speak extemporaneously, and their radio speeches, as a result, seldom capture the fancy of the ear-cuppers on the couches.

* * *

Copeland is the most experienced, microphonically, of all the Senators. And his style, as a consequence, is the most intimate. His voice is known wherever radio penetrates, but his subject matter is almost wholly confined to health topics.

Johnson is the fastest-talking of the Senators, while Wagner seems to me the most careful in choosing his words. Vandenberg, of Michigan, has an excellent voice. And so, too, have Bingham, of Connecticut, and Barkley, of Kentucky. When James Hamilton Lewis takes his place in the upper house, the armchairs should hear the land's foremost exponent of polite sarcasm.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Still among the independent artists whose services are not controlled arbitrarily by one or the other of our networks, Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit step over to NBC tonight to do a 30-minute program while also holding a lucrative contract with CBS. This business of performing for both networks is a rarity among artists. Sanderson and Crumit are to be heard here through WCAE at 8 o'clock. Sunday they return to CBS for a 5:30 program.

* * *

We bade Percy Grainger bon voyage (or was it just au revoir) some weeks ago when he said he was going away from radio for a year, but he bobs up in the ether tonight as special guest artist of a new concert on KDKA at 9.

* * *

GETTING MUSIC FROM "WHISTLES"

Ever notice the "whistle" in a vacuum tube when you hold your hand over it?

Well, a Frenchman, Maurice Martenot, has made these "whistles" into music.

Monsieur's invention has the ability to mimic almost every instrument in the orchestra and has also a unique tone of its own.

Convinced of its possibilities, the inventor brings it to CBS-WJAS listeners at 9:30 tonight for its American premiere. And no easy pieces either, as witness Saint-Saens' "The Swan" and Grieg's "Anitra's Dance" with orchestra obbligato.

* * *

Music in this "Instrument of Sound Waves" is created by varied oscillations of vacuum tubes much as in the KDKA "radio pipe organ" demonstrated here not long ago by Dr. Charles Heinroth.

* * *

We remember Dr. Heinroth played "Andante Cantabile" on this queer instrument and pronounced it "almost perfect." We shall see if science has made it perfect tonight.

* * *

Paul Whiteman, "King of Jazz" and his world renowned dance orchestra, are coming back to radio paradise. They're on the NBC network Tuesday evenings starting January 27. More later when NBC gets through dickering with the King.

* * *

Forgive us if we mention that Paul played the big bass fiddle in the Sunday School Orchestra when he was a boy in Denver, Colorado. Then they called him "Little Paul Whiteman." But like Napoleon he had ambition to do things in a big way.

* * *

QUESTION A DAY:

Where is Ted Lewis and why doesn't he ever broadcast?—A. D. E.

Answer—Ted is in New York right now. He gave his first sponsored radio program over WMCA last Sunday. We may hear more of him later although his style is not particularly adapted to the air.

* * *

"Snoop and Peep" the demon de-tec-a-tives are not on tonight, having changed their time to Saturday at 7:30 via WEAF.

* * *

"BY THE WAY—"

Little Jack Little entertains KDKA fans to morrow at 1:45 . . . Bill Hay is so popular with the boys in Chicago that they just have to have him on network broadcasts . . . Thereby hangs the story of his appearances on both NBC and CBS . . . Cheer up! Lorna Fantin, the astrologer on WCAE tonight at 9, says it's a good year to try for bigger things . . . John B. Kennedy, radio impresario, was formerly publicity director for the Knights of Columbus in the United States and overseas . . . Gus Van and Lillian Roth do the honors for WABC only at 8 o'clock this eve . . . Frederick William Wile celebrates his ninth calendar year on the air tonight . . . WTIC has cornered Jack Dempsey for a series of interviews starting Tuesday, January 13 . . . Islam Grotto boys are bringing Ray Knight and his Cuckoos to Carnegie Hall on February 18 and 19 . . . Our best bet for popular music this month, "Something to Remember You By."

Night raids on crow roosts are being made by pecan growers in Oklahoma. The birds, which have destroyed thousands of dollars' worth of pecans, are being shot by hunters.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Is Every Friendly Male a Prospective Husband?

Should Boy Friends have serious intentions?

Sabra thinks they should.

Is it right to date a girl regularly if you have no intention of marrying her?

Sabra thinks it isn't.

The girl at the bottom of her plight is named Ward. To you or to me Ward might not seem such a dark-dyed scoundrel. He hasn't deceived her. He told her from the first that he liked her but wasn't thinking of marrying. But like most girls Sabra thought he'd get over it. And her hopes mounted as his dates multiplied. But unfortunately, Ward seems no nearer the Great Question than he was last year. So—

Shall she ask him for a showdown?

No Serious Intentions

And take it from me, Sabra isn't the only femme who's wondering over the same problem. For regular Boy Friends who don't want to be anything else are getting to be the most plentiful thing we have. And how's a girl ever going to land herself a husband if her Steady insists on being only a Platonic Pal?

"Dear Miss Martin:—

"I wonder what you'll think of the situation I'm in. I wish you'd give me your opinion on it. I don't know just what to do.

"About a year and a half ago I met Ward, a young man who is studying architecture, and began to go out with him. At first I only saw him every fourth or fifth week, but gradually my dates with him have increased until I see him almost every week now. And I am wondering just how to take him.

"During the last eight months he has taken me to all his formal affairs and even introduced me to his folks. He is very nice to me when I am out with him and he says that he likes me a lot. But I know that he has no serious intentions of getting married. He told me that right from the start.

Affections Grow

He wants to go to Europe to study, and I know that will take a good deal of both time and money, but I have been in hopes right along that he would change his mind. I have grown to care a great deal for him, and I would be perfectly content waiting for him, if he would only hint that he cared enough to ask me. But he never breathes a word about the future—except as it concerns his career.

"Do you think he has any right to call on me so often and to act the way he does if he has no serious intentions toward me?

"I have grown to care so much for him that I have practically given up all my other boy friends, yet he says nothing.

"Do you think that anything definite will ever materialize from such a courtship? And would you say not that I have a talk with him and find out what he intends to do?

"I have too much pride to want to do that, but perhaps having too much pride is not so good either. Please let me have your opinion. Is there any one right thing for me to do?

"Any advice I should like.

"SABRA."

Is he being fair to you?

I can't see any reason why he won't speak. He told you in the beginning you admit it yourself—exactly what his intentions were—simple friendship.

Why shouldn't he call on you if he finds you pleasant company, even if he hasn't any intention of marrying? Most every male acquaintance be a prospective husband?

Frankly, you think so. But you're wrong. There is no reason on earth why a man and a woman shouldn't be just friends. And if you've got yourself hurt, no one is to blame but you. You walked into this situation with your eyes open. And then, in spite of what you knew it to be, you began to weave a romance about it. And to cook up a mess of misery for yourself. And blame Him for it.

Must Be Careful

He hasn't two-timed you. You have two-timed yourself.

Do I think anything definite will come of it? I don't know. It might, provided you played your cards right. But not if you play them the way you're playing them now.

Do I think you should have a talk with him about it? Not if you value his friendship and want to keep it. Because the minute that you let him see that you feel he owes you something, he's going to be so astonished and offended that he'll walk right out of the picture.

But stop sitting around waiting for him to call you. Go out with other friends, as naturally and easily as if you never dreamed of Ward being serious toward you. Be busy a time or two when he calls you. Give him a little competition.

Then, if he is interested in you, maybe he'll ask you to wait for him. But he certainly won't if you make a doormat of yourself and then act as if he'd done you dirt. He'll only be sore at you . . . and rightly so.

Careers Are Cut Short by Dissipation—When They Promise Most, Fay King Warns

IN READING THE WIVES OF GREAT GENIUSES WHO DIED YOUNG FROM DISSIPATION THINK HOW MUCH GREATER WORKS THEY WOULD HAVE ACCOMPLISHED HAD THEY LIVED DECENTLY AND LONGER
SOMEBODY SAID MORALS ARE MEANT FOR STUPID, DULL, UNIMPORTANT PEOPLE — THE RICH AND THE GIFTED ARE A LAW UNTO THEMSELVES
WHAT A LONG LIST OF NAMES WE COULD COMPILE OF THOSE WHOSE CAREERS ENDED PREMATURELY BECAUSE OF DRINK AND DISSIPATING
WHAT A PITY!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Some of the world's greatest geniuses have died drunkards or the victim of disease contracted from a life of dissipation.

It was not drinking and dissipating that made them geniuses. Their gifts were so great that they flourished in spite of being handicapped by a weak will.

How much greater work they might have done had they lived sanely, decently and longer!

Many foolish persons think that the gifted and great have the right to do as they please—that they are above the petty sensible rules of right living.

Alas, they pay the penalty! Successful careers are cut short ingloriously when they promise most.

In emulating the famous aspire to that excellency which made them famous. Not those excesses which made them fail.

Madge Reviews Events Which Pre-Dated the Letter

I felt as if icy fingers had touched me when Noel Veritzen whispered that he wished he did not have to tell me of his father's letter to him that "it was too horrible for words." But I let no hint of my feeling appear in my face as his whisper trailed off into silence, and he faced me with tortured eyes.

"Nonsense," I said as briskly as I could manage with the lowered voice upon which Lillian had insisted. "You have brooded over this thing until you are overwrought. It is probably bad enough, but I am sure it is nothing that cannot be dealt with. Suppose you sit back and pull yourself together while I go over what I know of the matter, and then you can tell me all about it, and let me be the judge of how bad it is."

I smiled at him as he obediently sank back into his chair. But I could fat more easily have wept at his strained, pallid young face. I struck into speech swiftly instead, for I was sure that he needed all the leeway I could give him.

"Here is my understanding of the situation," I said, holding his eyes with mine, for I hoped that attention to what I was saying would enable him to forget for the moment his brooding over his father's message. "When your father left the city after that dramatic scene in which he discovered that his hopes for your marriage to Princess Olina were lost, he gave us all to understand that he might never return, and that at any rate, you and Mary would never hear from him again. He disinherited you—for the second time—" purposely I let a little smile of disdain for the elder Veritzen's foolishness twist my lips—"and withdrew from Mary his promise to make her the most famous Veritzen star. But you were both so happy in your romance after the farce—almost turned into tragedy—of your engagement to Princess Olina and Mary's to Prince Georges, that neither of you cared a whit for disinheritance or favor withdrawn. You were naturally worried over your financial future, but that was all. Then after that dastardly attack upon you which Jack Leslie instigated—"

"I've—wondered—sometimes," Noel interrupted with a pause after each hoarsely whispered word, "if my—father—could—have—had—anything—to—do—with—that—beast's—coming—back."

"What utter nonsense!" I answered, for I felt that I could sincerely defend Philip Veritzen upon that point at least. "Your father has not sunk so low as to plot a murderous attack upon his only son."

"He could plot a viler one against my happiness," the boy returned hotly. "But I do not mean the attack upon me. Leslie hates me enough to turn that trick himself. But I mean bringing the blackguard back so that he might meet Mary again."

I looked at him with suddenly startled yes.

"Dear boy," I said in the tone of a sage of seventy instructing a child of twelve, "you are letting your imagination run away with you. Remember that Jack Leslie is the man your father hates above everyone in the world because he considers him responsible for that old—trouble of yours."

I need not have hesitated. The boy did not even flush at this reference to his having been unjustly expelled from college for a theft which it was afterward proved Jack Leslie had committed.

"I know that," he said. "But my father is hardly himself. You don't know what he might try to do or what instrument he might use."

"I am positive he never would use Jack Leslie," I retorted, "just as I am positive Jack Leslie would never assist your father in anything. He hates your father if anything worse than he hates you."

Noel's face brightened ever so slightly.

"Yes, that is true," he said. "I never thought of that."

"You would better think of it now." I told him a bit severely, "and put that idea out of your head. You have enough reality to worry you without creating out of your way to find fresh causes of uneasiness. Now to go back. While you were convalescing from that attack upon you Mary and you each received a letter from your father. I read Mary's which promised her $100,000 in cash and her restoration to favor as a Veritzen star if she gave you up in such fashion as to make you believe she had thrown you over. Yours you read, and when Mrs. Bickett was out of the room you burned it. But am I right in thinking you could repeat it from memory?"

"It is cut into my heart," Noel said, and it would have been a cynic indeed who could have smiled at his boyishly melodramatic words.

"Do not be angry at me," I said, "but I want you to answer me one question before you tell me of that letter. Is it the accusation against Mary or the threat against her which is troubling you?"

Noel sprang to his feet, with fingers pressed into his palms.

"You think he began hoarsely. Then as I spoke an imperative "Hush!" with a glance toward the door, his anger dissolved into astonishment.

"How did you know what was in that letter?" he whispered. "Did my father show it to you?"

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, January 7

A rather unimportant day is forecast from the chain of minor planetary aspects. These, however, are not of a friendly nature and may incubate many small annoyances, perplexities and inharmonies. The most menacing figure for this threatens the social, domestic or affectional relations, with the realm of employment under hazardous influence.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year which may be beset with minor annoyances, complications and setbacks, especially in employment and in domestic, affectional and social circles. With equanimity and wise action things may be developed with some satisfaction, but all depends on one's own attitude.

A child born on this day may be disposed to be restless, nervous, querulous and critical, qualities which may react unhappily on its own peace of mind and progress.

Safe Handles

When cooking in saucepans, frying pans or any pan having a long handle, be sure to turn the handles toward the back of the stove. If you have a 2-year-old toddling around the kitchen it might be a little more trouble for mother but it is worth the chance of the child bumping into a long handle and upsetting the contents over him.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Tonsils May Be Root of Infection

Frequently I am asked whether I advise removal of the tonsils. Anxious mothers are always worried about the thought of an operation. I quite understand their feeling, yet the procedure of removing tonsils is such a simple one that no one should be unduly alarmed over it.

DR. COPELAND

It is not true by any means that all tonsils should be removed. There is no doubt in my mind that at times this procedure has been carried too far. Tonsils that are enlarged but not diseased, and cause the child no discomfort, should not be removed. Such tonsils will never injure the health, and will undoubtedly shrink as the child grows older.

On the other hand, tonsils which are enlarged, diseased and a constant source of irritation, should be removed. Such tonsils serve as a source of infection for the body. They greatly hinder the health and welfare of the child. Children with enlarged tonsils are constantly subject to colds, sore throats, headaches, lack of appetite and poor development of the body.

Adenoids that interfere with normal breathing should be removed at once. A child with this trouble breathes through the mouth instead of through the nose. Such children are usually backward in their school work, are easily vexed, and their general development is retarded.

It has been said that about 95 per cent of earaches in infants and young children are due to adenoids. Deafness in children is often caused by the same cause. This condition is often the only cause of spasmodic croup in children. With the removal of the adenoids the croup is immediately cured.

In considering the prevention of acute rheumatic fever, "St. Vitus' dance" and certain forms of heart disease in children, it has been definitely proved that this cannot be accomplished without the removal of infected tonsils and adenoids. Though wholesale removal of tonsils and adenoids in children is by no means advocated, where there is definite infection they should be removed.

The removal of tonsils and adenoids is now considered to be a simple procedure, and is spoken of by most surgeons as a minor operation. Tonsils should never be removed during the time when they are acutely involved. The ideal time for their removal is during the summer months, when there is less chance of colds, sore throats and the children are away from school.

In adults, where the tonsils have persisted, and are enlarged and infected, they should be removed.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Soup Course

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A says that if soup is served in a coffee cup it should be eaten as though it were in a bowl. B says if it is drunk, the same as coffee, but if the bowl has handles it would be eaten with a spoon. Who is right, A or B? K. P.

This depends on the kind of soup that is served. If you are serving bouillon or consomme in large coffee cups, instead of in bouillon cups or in cream soup cups, the person eating might test the heat* first by sipping from the spoon the first few mouthfuls, and then drinking the rest from the cup, as we would drink tea.

But if the soup is a heavier soup—a cream soup, for instance—the person eating would eat all of the soup with the spoon.

In other words, if the large coffee cup is used as the container for soup, the soup is eaten as it would be if the container were the conventional soup cup. After all it is only a question of a handle—a handle that seldom is used.

Thanking for Hospitality

Dear Miss Beeckman:

Will you please settle an argument?

My girl friend says when a girl and her young man friend are out together, at a party or driving with another couple, that when the young man thanks them for the enjoyable evening, the girl should thank them also. But I don't think she should. Who is right?

2. When dancing with different young men and they thank you for the dance, should the girl say anything? If so, what? M. R.

Your girl friend wins! Always, everyone, whether the "one is a girl or a boy, a woman or a man, should thank for any form of hospitality that is given. This is one of the fundamental social amenities.

2. The girl says something, more or less casual but nevertheless important, that tells the young man that she also has enjoyed the dance. Just that perhaps . . . "I have enjoyed that dance so much, Bob," or "That was a delightful dance."

Household Hints

When making wash dresses for the small daughter make a hem of three inches and also make a tuck on the wrong side of the hem for lengthening later. This allowance will surely be enough to keep the dress the right length until it is worn out.

It is wise to pin a safety pin through one corner of the rug before taking it up to change rugs for the winter. Then when it is put back next season, see that the pin goes in the opposite corner. Then you are certain to have changed your rug for better wear.

A wooden box placed just inside the shed door to be used as a receptacle for rubbers and galoshes will save the housewife a lot of cleaning up during the winter months. It can just about ruin a clean linoleum when the family scatters their footwear all over the kitchen.

Before giving the kitchen walls their next coat of paint be sure that every crack and crevice is filled smoothly with plaster. There is a mending plaster on the market now for these small jobs, not unlike plaster of Paris, except it takes longer to harden and is, therefore, more easily applied by the amateur.

If children are early taught to put away their playthings when they are through with them, they never think of it as a task; it becomes as natural for them to be tidy as careless in this matter. The same holds true of their clothes. This habit established in youth will save many footsteps for mother and will be an asset for the adult. Many a domestic quarrel has arisen over the trivial matter of a husband's coat flung carelessly over the back of a living room chair.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When brushing the hair don't slap the brush hard on the temples where the glorious crown is thinnest. Part the hair in the center way to the nape of the neck and brush from the parting.

Whether or not bleached hair can be permanently waved depends upon the length of time the bleaching has been continued and how much ammonia has been used. Ammonia is the destructive agent in bleaching, it ruins and warps the structure of the hair.

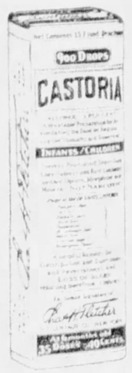
Girls who think themselves beautiful are more beautiful in their own eyes than in the eye of the beholder. Many a girl who believes herself plain is a winner; she has beauty qualities not observed by the eye, but those that are detected by the mind and the heart. Vanity rides for a fall. Pride marches. Pride is something else again.

When the eyelids burn and smart, dissolve a teaspoonful of powdered boric acid in a cupful of boiling water, strain, cool and apply with an eyecup. Natural animation is the best of all eye brighteners.

Improper sitting positions may create "chair diseases"—flat chests, crooked backs, flaccid abdominal muscles and all their attendant ills. One result of slumping in the chair is spinal curvature. The perfectly designed chair has a back which curves inward and offers a support at the waistline.

No external application will have much effect upon puffs under the eyes. They may be inherited or they may result from fatigue; often they are the direct result of faulty elimination of kidneys or intestinal tract. Bathing first with hot water and then with cold will unpuff them somewhat for the time being.

FOR ANY CHILD



CHILDREN are happy and carefree by nature, so when they cry for no apparent reason any careful mother worries. No one can always guess just why it is wrong—the baby has a fretful spell, is feverish and cross and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Sometimes it is constipation. Just keep Castoria handy and give freely for any of the above conditions; relief will follow promptly.

All through babyhood, Castoria is a mother's standby and wise mothers do not change to strong cathartics as the child grows older. Just increase the dose of Castoria and keep the bowels in regular order.

To be sure of getting genuine Fletcher's Castoria you should look for this signature: Chas. H. Fletcher

YANT HEADS MINE BUREAU

W. P. Yant, supervising chemist of the Health Laboratory Section of the United States Bureau of Mines, has been named supervising engineer of the Pittsburgh station. He succeeds G. St. J. Perrot, who resigned to accept a position on the staff of a Milwaukee corporation. Although Perrot's resignation does not become effective until March 1,

Mr. Yant

Yant will assume his new position immediately in order to give Perrot full time in which to prepare for publication final reports on his work with the bureau.

Mr. Perrot

The promotion of Yant was announced today by the United States Department of Commerce. He is a resident of East Sparta, O., and since 1925 has been attached to the Pittsburgh station. During his service with the Bureau of Mines, Yant has, among other things, studied ventilation problems of the Holland tunnels in New York and the Liberty Tunnels in Pittsburgh.

LEAGUE DENIES STORE BILL

Officers of the Prosperity League, Inc., have denied the purchase of any goods from the Pittsburgh Store Fixture Company and say that a claim of $225 will be litigated in court.

The league's bank account was attached December 23, and since that time $500 has been set aside as a bond and the remainder of the account released. V. C. Getty, president of the league, says the furniture was delivered on trial at the headquarters at 5493 Penn avenue and was never actually purchased.

A reduction in the scope of the league's program of commissions was made on a different date and had no relation to the dispute with the furniture company, league officials say. Each member pays $1 initiation fee and has the opportunity to enroll five new members at a commission of 40 cents each. When the five secure five, the original member receives 20 cents each on the 25. It is possible for the member to receive $50.75 for $1, whereas previously $1,238 was the maximum.

Real Estate

The Catholic Diocese of Pittsburgh represented by the Rt. Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, its bishop, has purchased three houses and two garages at Knox avenue and Lillian street through L. W. Monteverde and S. T. Christian. Pending the use of the property for school purposes, the Real Estate Company will act as renting agent.

The weekly luncheon of the Pittsburgh Builders' Exhange will be held Thursday in the Red Room of the Keystone Athletic Club. Dr. F. O. Anderegg is scheduled to speak on "Watertight Brick Walls." E. Curtis Clark, chairman, will preside.

The Pittsburgh Housing Association is sending bulletins to agencies and individuals interested in repairing and cleaning up properties in Pittsburgh, saying that they need not fear increased tax assessments as a result of their work. According to Thomas C. McMahon, chief city assessor, general necessary repairs such as repair work to keep a building in good condition, painting and cleaning would not be a basis for increased assessment. Only important alterations or additions that obviously add to the value of the property act as a basis for higher tax assessments.

An improved property in Locust street, First Ward, has been sold by J. Salzman to Duquesne University for $12,000. The lot is 21x118 feet.

Applications for building permits follow:

CHICAGO MAYOR IN SANITARIUM

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Rheumatism has forced Mayor William Hale "Big Bill" Thompson to abandon, temporarily, his duties at the city hall.

The "cowboy" Mayor of Chicago, who is seeking the Republican nomination for mayor at the February primary for the fourth time was in Mt. Clemens, Mich., today for treatment. It was learned he was unable to attend the City Council meeting last Friday and was ordered by his physicians to go to Mt. Clemens. He was expected, one report said, to be absent from the city for a week or 10 days. Another said he was able to walk only with the aid of a cane.

The Mayor underwent an emergency operation for relief from appendicitis two months ago, but recovered sufficiently to enter the present political campaign. He is opposed by Judge John H. Lyle, Alderman Arthur F. Albert and Charles Barrett, all of whom are pushing their campaigns. Barrett took cognizance yesterday of a rumor he might quit the race with a statement in which he said:

"My campaign for Mayor is going ahead with enthusiastic progress in every part of the city."

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes away the inflammation. Part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The Pitt last night became the scene of a "world premiere." George Sharp became a producer. The Pitt program took on added dignity and announced that Mr. Sharp "presents 'Hell Is Paved,' a comedy in three acts by Charles Brownell and Mann Page, with Eugene O'Brien." But before the curtain ascended Edwin Vail came forth to reveal that there was a specimen of musca domestica in the unguent — otherwise, a fly in the ointment. He imparted the sad news that Mr. O'Brien, because of illness, was unable to be present. There was a stir in the audience indicating disappointment.

That feeling later reverted to be extended to the play itself also, for although it has a new variation of the march theme to supply a novel plot, it is late in disclosing itself. And it is especially interesting this having of the groundwork regarding an event long first and audience into two scenes of which only the second develops anything stirring to the senses. That is when John Winthrop, who had the role Mr. O'Brien was deprived of by fate came across an enchantress in the person of Leuba Lane.

TRAINING FOR LOVE

The scene was a road in the country, whither Mr. Winthrop had been for three months with a trainer to bring back the figure he had when he was a gridiron hero with dear old Rut — no, no — Dartmouth. You see his son had got to fussing about a he-butterfly who seemed to be hovering around in fact was hovering around to what the son thought was to his father's disadvantage. So there he was — in the country training to win back his own wife. By becoming an Adonis.

But the enchantress saw him first. And took him to see a wonderful tree — with branches reaching to the ground — forming a "nature's boudoir" as it was later described. This siren happened to be a lady in love with love, whose imagination made real the things her romantic soul longed for. So later, in describing her "adventure," she made it appear there had been an affair. Mr. Adonis, who only sought to hold his wife, was in hot water for he bought the tree and had it transplanted in his own yard, a memento of a love his wife thought. And there we will leave them, we can't give away all the author's secrets.

ONE GOOD SCENE

The play, the title of which seems inappropriate, is moderately amusing throughout, and has one compelling comedy scene, wherein the enchantress describes her "conquest" to some of her old school friends, one of the wife of her new "Greek god," and another the worldly-wise flip-cracking Mabel Kroman, who knew how romantic the other was. This scene was a triumph for Miss Lane, the only genuine one of the evening. She would have "stolen the show" with this scene alone and made the audience forget all about Eugene O'Brien even if he had been playing opposite her. She exhaled romance and recited Swinburne verse with much feeling.

Mr. Winthrop did a good workmanship job of a business man trying to bring back youth, and Katherine Maison gave a pleasing portrayal of the wife. Hugh Banks and Peggy Daugherty did well with the young love interest. Paul McGrath, Miss Kroman, Alice Ann Baker, Robert Fiske, Edwin Vail and James F. Kelly, the latter brought in to play the part of the trainer, had supporting roles.

The setting for all except the road in the country is a sunken garden, a finely executed study reflecting much credit on Mr. Sharp's technical department.

Lillian Foster's Acting Fails to Float Play, 'With the Tide'

By GEORGE SEIBEL

EUGENE O'NEILL started a fine drama "With the Tide" at the Nixon Theater last night, but he walked off about the middle of the second act and left it to drift out into the Sargasso Sea strewn with wreckage of many a goodly craft.

George Seibel

The pity is that there were four competent mariners aboard. If tense and realistic acting could make any play a success, the work of Lillian Foster should bring this one into port. For she paints a drab portrait so true, she evokes a vision of purifying love so pathetic, and at times she shows flashes of emotion so magnificent that one wishes "With the Tide" were better sustained to crown her with laurels as she deserves. But the tide ebbs.

And the other three actors—Doan Borrup as the Skipper, Michael Barr as the hero, and Anthony Hughes as the policeman—also do masterly though unpleasant work. This is one of those plays where everybody absorbs plenty of raw liquor to wash down the disagreeable taste life has left on their palates.

Just like O'Neill, Strindberg, Hauptmann, and all those Russians. That's what one knows to be coming as soon as the curtain rises and shows the cabin of a barge, built by Cleon Throckmorton with a fine flair for atmospheric effects. Tragedy and gloom lurk in every corner.

WHO KILLED SCHULTZ?

The fine first act might be entitled "Who Killed Schultz?" First the Skipper tells the Outcast Woman that Schultz has been murdered. Then Tom comes slinking in and after awhile accuses himself of the murder. The Woman loves Tom, but he will not look at her. She thinks she can win his love, though she may not hold it long, if she saves him from the police.

The police are symbolized by the burly frame of Anthony Hughes, who drops in every now and then for a drink or to make improper advances to Christine, which she repulses like those of the Skipper because she wants to be worthy of Tom.

When the Skipper, finely acted by Doan Borrup, wants to blurt out the information that Tom did not kill Schultz, and Christine prevents him from telling, and later when the policeman tells he has caught the murderer, and Christine tries to keep it from Tom, the situation becomes mildly grotesque. In fact, the whole dramatic fabric at last goes up in smoke as Miss Foster consumes one cigaret after another in a vain effort to paint business upon an empty canvas.

Which is a great pity, for there seemed to be a strongly knit drama there until the Skipper's coughing fit is used to furnish him an exit. There's a dramatic device rather novel. If you must get a character off, and no other excuse is at hand, cough him off.

PREACH AND POETIZE

Shortly before that the structure of the drama began to sag, as Tom began to preach about the "mothers of the race" and to poetize about Christine's "soft yielding body." Soon he has Christine believing that "life means something" and he works off another little sermon about "salvation."

Tom is built that way. But being built that way, how did he ever come to hit Schultz? And why didn't he surrender instead of skulking along the docks? And at last, after Christine has told him he is no murderer, he walks cheerfully off assuring her he will always remember her. He might promise to send her a picture postcard now and then.

Josephine Victor, who adapted this play from a German original by Fritz Stein, has come very close to great drama, but falls into bathos with half a dozen lines that reveal the weakness of the main theme. The tension is too great and the material too thin to stretch over three acts. Even a melodramatic movie fight for a girl and four or five bottles of rye cannot convince us that the paltry hero is worth the love of even so drab a creature as Christine, though Lillian Foster works valiantly to make her love plausible.

THURSTON FILLS ALVIN WITH MAGIC AND AMUSEMENT

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Thurston, the big man of magic, came to the Alvin for a two weeks' stay last night. And now, at every performance, there are enough goings-on to keep everyone, including the Pittsburgh police, mystified day and night. More things disappear than you'd imagine were possible to get into one theater. And what Thurston can conceal in a comparative small and empty cabinet is just, well, nobody's business.

The Thurston magic is not only puzzling, but it is entertaining. Moments of humor are plentiful. A whisky bottle appears from the back of the neck of a lady in the audience. A man across the aisle seems to be inflicted with guinea pigs.

GOODBY, GIRLS

One minute an automobile filled with girls is on the stage. The next second it and the girls are gone. Another lady vanishes over the audience's head and still another is put into a big cannon and turns up in a locked-up box.

Thurston's daughter, Jane, blonde and attractive, is an asset to the presentation. She has followed her father's footsteps, all right. She handles some of the tricks he used to do himself and she does a dance and sings a song or two.

BIG WHITE LIE

Cards, pigeons, geese, rabbits, ghosts, and the witches only know what else, obey the beck and call of Thurston. And with a broad smile he says "I wouldn't deceive you for the world." But we're telling you this is just a great big white lie.

Thurston has a grand style with children in the audience. He enlists a number of them to help him put on his show. Last night he found two who served him well, a little girl, whose name was Margaret, and a little boy, whose name was Donald. Margaret received a guinea pig and a box of candy for her service. Donald got two passes to Saturday's matinee.

We had a couple of other things we wanted to mention in connection with the show. But they've disappeared. Ah, well, 'tis the Thurston influence.

Frank Morgan's sis-in-law, Phyllis Reinus, transfers her engagement ring to another finger when she wants to remind herself that her ex-hubby's alimony is over-due . . . CONSTABLE'S ASSAILANT SUICIDE

Convicted Twice, Old Jobless Man Chooses to Die Rather Than Go to Jail

Charles Wyke, 52, raiding constable of South Heights, Beaver County, was battling for his life in Valley Hospital, Sewickley, today after having been shot down by Robert Fielding, 74, former British soldier and twice convicted bootlegger, as he attempted to raid Fielding's home in defiance of the aged law violator's threat that he would shoot to kill.

Three hours after he had refused the proffered aid of Beaver County detectives in arresting Fielding, Wyke, accompanied by Deputy John Haggerty, approached the front door of the Fielding residence and demanded admittance. Fielding was on the back porch, and his wife, Mrs. Lucy Fielding, 64, urged the constable to go away.

OFFICER FIRM

Wyke refused to leave the porch, and Fielding entered the rear door and dashed to the front door with an automatic pistol in his hand. Mrs. Fielding screamed. Wyke seeing Fielding coming turned his back to step from the porch and two shots rang out.

One bullet passed through the trouser of Deputy Haggerty. The other ploughed into Wyke's back. An operation will be required Wyke's condition is critical.

Mrs. Fielding sobbed after the suicide and attempted killing.

"Rob didn't mean to harm anyone. He was just trying to get together money to pay the rent by making moonshine.

"He had tried so hard to get work, and failed because of his age. We had been married five years, and he was a good man."

HAD NO FEAR

District Attorney Blaine MacGowan, of Beaver Falls, said:

"Wyke was up at the courthouse yesterday morning with two bootleggers, who pleaded guilty. At noon he came to me and told me that Fielding, who had several times been convicted of liquor law violations, was active in bootlegging again and that the church people in the neighborhood were complaining of visitors at the Fielding home.

"Wyke asked my advice, and I told him that he should enforce the law. Beaver is a dry county, and we try to keep it dry.

"Under the circumstances I could not do anything but advise Wyke to do his duty, and I recall that when I offered him the assistance of our county detectives he pointed to Homer Irvin, of Sheffield, one of his prisoners, and said: 'Why Fielding is as old as Irvin. I can handle him just as easily.'"

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

The Pittsburgh Credit Bureau hears of every kind of fakery and keeps its clients informed of the up-to-minute rackets. One of the latest has to do with a man who deposited $2,000 in a bank, went to a jewelry store and bought a ring for $1,500. He paid by check and notified the clerk to deliver the ring when the check was found to be good. The clerk did.

A day later, a bellhop walked eagerly into the same jewelry store. He had the ring that had been purchased by our friend for $1,500.

"Do you know this ring?" asked the bellhop. "Yes," said the clerk. "Why?"

"Well," said the bellhop, "a man told me he paid $1,500 for it yesterday and that he would sell it to me for $500. He said if I came here you would verify the price he paid for it."

The clerk verified the price, but the unusual transaction caused him to call the police and explain the strange transaction. The police called on our friend who sold a $1,500 ring for $500 and wanted to know all about it.

"What business is this of the police?" he asked, truculently.

"Well, the store called us in, and anyway since you're so fresh, just come on down to the police station and explain it all down there."

"You mean I'm arrested."

"You bet."

The gentleman went along, submitted to questioning, was released, and now he is suing for false arrest, malicious mischief, and a lot of other things.

A. Warren McMillen, of the Gulf Refining, buys his shirts in Honolulu, Hawaii, by mail. That in itself is something. The other day Mr. McMillen's favorite Honolulu shirt makers sent him a bill bearing directions which disturbed the McMillen peace of mind:

"FINDING NOTICE: Before finding Musa-Shiya shop kindly pass away in front Famous Fish Market Makai Side North King street and progress to river but not there until finding between this place. Sign say so."

When Contractor George J. Fox, who divides his time between Pittsburgh and Greensburg, forgets his telephone number he recalls the license number on his car, and vice versa, because they're the same.

Mr. Fox, incidentally, was a good friend of the late Kin Hubbard, whose Abe Martin humor was the best we've ever read. With each annual Abe Martin book Mr. and Mrs. Fox were certain to receive one from the author, suitably autographed. So great was Mr. Fox's admiration for Hubbard that he bought 100 of each of the Martin books and distributed them to his friends. Do we hear a lot of authors bidding for Mr. Fox's admiration?

Two young married couples of Dormont who like to go places, sat at home on New Year's Eve, and played bridge. The husbands didn't feel like paying the high tariffs some of the places were charging but, not wanting to be classified as close, offered their wives this alternative: Here's $15, buy yourself something, and we won't go out New Year's Eve. Both wives grabbed the money.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 6.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph.

After a football game in Lima, Peru, five were killed. They only kill 10 in a revolution down there, so two games equals one revolution. Up here we don't kill our football players, we make coaches out of the smartest ones, and send the others to the legislature.

Will Rogers

See where Mr. Hoover's private secretary, George Akerson, is coming in the movies with us. I bet Mr. Hoover told him, "Go on in, George, and if you see a chance for another good man, I will come in with you."

Yours,

WILL.

BOARD VOTES SCHEDULED INCREASES

Other Salary Pleas Denied As 'Superior' Instructors Are Rewarded Under Plan

The Board of Education at its meeting yesterday granted salary increases to 455 teachers in the public schools. The board approved the increases required by the salary schedules and announced it had no intention of deviating from its policy of not considering other applications for increased pay. At a recent budget meeting the board excluded all applications for increases except scheduled ones.

The increases granted yesterday were automatic under previous action and in accordance with recommendations by the citizens' committee on teachers' salaries. The board's action consisted of approving lists of teachers to be rewarded, each having been classified as a "superior" teacher by the personnel department.

GRAHAM CONCURS

The recommendations for increases were made by Dr. S. E. Weber, head of the personal department. Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of schools, concurred and transmitted the recommendations to the board. The raises included increases for 291 teachers from $2,200 to $2,400 a year; 21 from $2,850 to $3,025; nine from $3,025 to $3,200; 39 from $3,200 to $3,400; 38 from $3,400 to $3,600; 18 from $3,800 to $4,000, and four principals from $4,250 to $4,500.

The board re-elected three department heads with no change in their salaries. They were James Bonar, superintendent of buildings; Carl M. McKee, superintendent of supplies, and Dr. J. P. Kerr, city controller, who is also school controller as required by the school code.

MILLIONS IN SAVINGS

A report on the school savings system was made by the Union Savings Bank, depository for the pupils' savings. There are now 164,417 depositors and their total cash on deposit aggregates $2,046,188.48. It was said the local pupils have the largest total of such deposits in any American city.

The board authorized its secretary, H. W. Cramblet, to convey its sympathy to the family of James I. Buchanan, former member of the board, who died Friday

The other youth, Emile Grayshock, 21, of Akron, was arrested in Akron on information received from Hoover and Pishney. Pishney and Hoover pleaded guilty to stealing an automobile, as well as to complicity in the bank robbery, while Grayshock pleaded only to taking part in the holdup.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 6.—Southwestern Pennsylvania and Northern West Virginia today were repairing the severe damage caused by the hurricane which swept the district yesterday, unroofing several buildings, felling poles and wires and breaking windows. THIRTY-FIRST WARD PLAYGROUNDS SITE PROTESTED

CITIZENS VOICE OBJECTION IN PETITION

Inaccessibility of Location, Urgent Need of Sewers Set Forth; Health Menaced

Opposition to the purchase of a $27,000 playground site in Lincoln Place was voiced today by a group of Thirty-first Ward property owners, who point to the imperative need for sewers in the recently annexed Hays Borough and Lincoln Place districts.

A petition containing approximately 400 signatures was to be presented to Council by a committee of property owners headed by Mrs. Alice Heckman of Lincoln place and Mrs. Arthur E. Heinzenberger of Hays.

OBJECT TO SITE

The petition objects to the purchase chiefly because of its so-called inaccessibility. The petition reads:

"Civically speaking, we, the signers, are in favor of playgrounds properly situated and capably supervised. However, since the geographical location of the Thirty-first Ward renders it impossible to centrally locate a large playground, we enlist your aid in the selection of smaller sites, both for Lincoln place and Hays in order to safeguard the youngsters from the hazards of the highways, street cars, etc."

The site favored by Ward Chairman C. J. McBride and others of his following in the Thirty-first Ward overlooks the chairman's home along the McKeesport road in Lincoln place. It is a lofty hilltop location of 21 acres, sufficient for a park, baseball grounds, dancing pavilion, picnic grove, wooded strolling paths and innumerable other recreational facilities. William M. Miller, Hays lumber man, is the owner. The price is $27,000 without improvements.

USED FOR PICNICS

A community picnic was held on the grounds last summer. Various buildings were erected temporarily, tables were provided in the grove and a baseball diamond was laid out. The diamond and buildings are still intact.

Children in the meanwhile play in the open sewer which gurgles through the main business section of old Hays borough. Cesspools in Lincoln place are filled to overflowing, according to Mrs. Heckman and her associates, and the health of the community is in constant jeopardy.

Y. W. C. A. SETS BUDGET TOTAL

The budget of the Young Women's Christian Association of Pittsburgh for the next year has been set at $140,000, Mrs. Albert P. Burchfield, chairman of publicity for the annual appeal, announced today. There are six branches of the association in the city and during last year contacts were made with 430,328 girls and young women.

For the last several months the Pittsburgh association has been actively co-operating with the unemployment committee appointed by President Hoover. JUDGE ORDERS MORE JURORS

To give more latitude in getting better jurors to try cases in Allegheny County courts during the coming year, President Judge James R. Macfarlane has made an order instructing the jury commissioners to provide 17,000 jurors instead of 16,000 ordered drawn last year.

Acting under this authority, the jury commissioners began today drawing twice this number, or 34,000 names, from which the panels will be sifted. The jury commissioners always draw twice the number of jurors demanded because many are found to be ineligible for service. Some are illiterate, some cannot speak English, some are mothers with small infants, and many whose names come from the jury wheel have moved or died.

The 17,000 will furnish jurors for the grand juries and the petit juries of County, Criminal and Common Pleas courts.

$300 CASH PRIZES AUTO SHOW CONTEST 200 SHOW Tickets

(The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph co-operating with the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association, is donating these prizes for the best answers and slogans.)

Here is the Sun-Telegraph Automobile Puzzle Contest, based on passenger cars to be exhibited in the forthcoming annual Automobile Show to be held at Motor Square Garden, January 17 to 24, inclusive.

One or two puzzle pictures, in each of which will be concealed the name of an automobile and in each of which are hidden several words, will be published every day in the daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Readers of the Sun-Telegraph are invited to find the names of the automobiles and to name the hidden words in each puzzle and send them to the Auto Show Contest Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, 612 Grant street, together with a good slogan, descriptive of the Automobile Show. YOU MUST SEND ALL YOUR ANSWERS AT THE SAME TIME IN ONE ENVELOPE AT THE COMPLETION OF THE CONTEST. ACCURACY, NEATNESS AND CLEVERNESS OF SLOGAN WILL BE CONSIDERED IN AWARDING THE PRIZES.

Prizes totaling $300 in gold and 200 show tickets are to be awarded the winners in the contest. Be sure to put your name and address with the slogan at the top of the first page. Your name should appear on each page you send in.

The final pictures will be published January 15. All answers must be in the hands of the Auto Show Contest Editor no later than noon, Friday, January 16. The winners will be announced at the Automobile Show, Monday evening, January 19, and in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph January 20.

At various times during the contest, the names of passenger cars to be exhibited at the show will be printed. From this list contestants are to pick the names of the cars.

CONTESTANTS ARE NOT TO SEND IN ANSWERS UNTIL THE FINAL PUZZLE PICTURES HAVE BEEN PRINTED. THEN SEND THEM IN ALL TOGETHER AT THE SAME TIME. WRITE THE NAMES OF THE CARS ON SEPARATE SHEETS OF PAPER WITH THE HIDDEN WORDS OF EACH PICTURE IN THE ORDER IN WHICH THE PICTURES APPEARED.

Your slogan must accompany the answers. It may be either rhyme or prose and should be applicable to the Automobile Show. It must be short, snappy and clever. Remember, it is an important factor in deciding the winners.

Any person is eligible to enter this contest except employes of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph or members of their families.

The contest started December 28. If you have missed any of the puzzles you can get back copies of the Sun-Telegraph by addressing the circulation department. Send three cents for daily papers or 10 cents for Sunday's, or the equivalent in postage stamps.

LIST OF PRIZES

For the best list of correct auto names, discovered mistakes, and the cleverest slogan, the following prizes will be awarded:

FIRST PRIZE—$100 in gold.

SECOND PRIZE—$50 in gold.

THIRD PRIZE—$25 in gold.

FIVE PRIZES of $10 each, $50 in gold.

No. 10—A name of a make of automobile is concealed in the picture; but despite its concealment the name is in plain view if you look for it.

HOW TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Makes One Look Younger

Men and women who used to be called Grandpa and Grandma are now setting the styles by darkening their gray hair at home.

For instance, J. A. McCrea, a well-known Californian, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture in five minutes that will darken gray hair and make it soft and glossy. Merely take a half-pint of water, add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at trifling cost. Apply to the hair twice weekly with a comb. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off.

Post-Holiday First Night Finds Many Society Folks at Theater

The post-holiday season finds many society folks sufficiently recovered from the hectic fortnight just past to attend the theater and to resume other social activities.

At the Nixon last night I saw the William A. Dickhams in the lobby, with Mrs. Dickham wearing a distinctive crown of garnet red crepe satin, fashioned with a square decolletage, a draped skirt and a brief train. Her wrap was of black velvet, with a collar of ermine, and the lining was red.

One of the buds of the season, Madelaine Alexander, in black velvet, was chatting with a group of the younger set during intermission. With her was Rosamound Pitch in black velvet with a long wrap of black velvet. Still another deb of the season at the show was Carolyn Clair Snow, who chose a vivid printed black crepe gown and a white lace jacket.

* * *

* * *

Today Mrs. Carl Hermann Intraeger is entertaining two of one season's buds, Betty McKay, daughter of the Thomas J. McKays, and Jane Marshall, daughter of the Charles D. Marshalls at a luncheon in the Twentieth Century Club. The guests are debs of this season and the past winter. The one long table is decked with three shades of sweetpeas and lighted with lavender tapers.

* * *

Margaret Mary Reilly, daughter of the John D. Reillys, of Marlboro street, left during the Christmas holidays for Chicago where she will attend the debuts of three of her classmates at the Finch School in New York. The debuts are being made in the Blackstone Hotel.

* * *

The Andrew Ellicott Maccouns of Braddock and Baltimore will give a dinner dance in the Hotel Belvedere, Baltimore, on January 16 in honor of their daughter, Mary Maccoun, whose wedding to Richard Rider Jackson, of Baltimore, will take place January 17 in Baltimore.

Variety of Events

* * *

A notable event in Sewickley will be the annual dinner the Sewickley Hunt will give January 17 in the Sewickley Hunt Club in honor of the joint masters of fox hounds, the John O. Burgwins.

* * *

* * *

Betrothal announcements galore are an aftermath of the holiday season. From the East comes news of the engagement of Janis Elizabeth Peix, daughter of Mrs. Charles H. Peix, of New Haven, Conn., and William Woodward Guthrie, of Sewickley and New Haven. Mr. Guthrie is a brother of Mrs. Felix B. Snowdon and a nephew of Mrs. Thomas H. Dickson and of Mrs. Edward L. Covert, of Sewickley. Janis attended the Gault School in Palm Beach, Fla.

The Phillip Kuhns Shaners, of Greensburg, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Elizabeth, to William M. Tierney, son of Mrs. Louise Tierney, of New York. Mary is a graduate of the Birmingham School, and of the University of Wisconsin; her fiance is a graduate of Lafayette College.

Genevieve Wright, daughter of the William O. Wrights, of Beechwood boulevard, has returned to National Park Seminary to resume her studies. She will attend the White House reception to the Senate in February, you will want to know. I'm sure. She plans to spend the spring holidays with her family in Miami, and probably will return here in June.

* * *

At a bridge luncheon Mrs. Wilbert G. Frazier, of Bellevue, gave Saturday in her home, announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Kathryn Elizabeth Lenhart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Edward Lenhart, of Hazelwood avenue, to Dr. John Calhoun Ewing, son of Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Ewing, of Shady avenue. Dr. Ewing is a graduate of Princeton, and of the school of medicine of the University of Pittsburgh.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Hahn, of North Avalon, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Edith Margaret Hahn, to Charles M. Klein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Klein, of the South Hills.

Miss Helen F. O'Donnell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. O'Donnell, of McKean avenue, Donora, and Vincent D. Sweeney, son of Mrs. Anna Sweeney, of Biltmore avenue, Dormont, were married yesterday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Charles Roman Catholic Church, Donora. The Rev. Patrick Diskin was the officiant.

The bride wore aquamarine blue georgette with beige lace at the neck and wrists and a felt hat to match. She carried lilies of the valley. Her only attendant, Miss Mary McGuire, wore peach colored lace with a hat to match, and carried pink roses. Charles F. Sweeney was his brother's best man.

A wedding breakfast in the Donora Hotel followed the ceremony. After an eastern wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Sweeney will be at home in Voelkel avenue, Dormont. Mrs. Sweeney is a graduate of Seton Hill Academy and the Carnegie Institute of Technology, and Mr. Sweeney attended Notre Dame.

Wilkinsburg Club Women Present Interesting 'Review of 1930'

The Woman's Club of Wilkinsburg had an especially interesting program yesterday under the caption "Review of 1930." Mrs. W. C. Walters was leader and introduced the half-dozen club members who presented the afternoon's entertainment. This consisted of five-minute papers on the best sellers, the best play, the best film and the outstanding event of the year.

Mrs. Albert L. Vencill discussed the best selling fiction including "Phillipa," by Anne Douglas Sedgwick; "Imperial Palace," by Arnold Bennett; "Twenty-four Hours," by Louis Bromfield; "Mosaic," G. B. Stern; "Old Wives Tale," Margaret Ayer Barnes; "Years of Grace" and "Water Gypsies," by A. P. Herbert. Mrs. Charles R. Beall chose Axel Munthe's "San Michell" as the best seller among the non-fiction books and Mrs. John L. Crouse gave an interesting resume of Balderston's play "Berkeley Square" as her contribution to the program.

To Mrs. S. B. Cuthbert was assigned the best film and "Abraham Lincoln" was her choice, although she also discussed "Disraeli," which is accounted a 1929 film, but was seen here last year.

After scanning the political and financial fields and touching upon many outstandig events of the last 12 moths, Mrs. Charles A. Tyler gave as her own selection the drought of last summer and commented on the astonishing lack of suffering as compared with what would have been entailed had it occurred in other countries.

POPULARITY OF VELVET FOR EVENING WEAR CONTINUES

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 6.—Velvet continues to pile up its successes and although winter sartorial season is on the wane, there is no dimunition in the output of velvet garments. The evening frock of black chiffon velvet is a sure bet when one is undecided just what to wear, and a well cut frock of it will never betray the confidence you may repose in it. For it is flattering, seeming rich-looking without being too opulent and has that air that frocks for joyous formal occasions should possess. It can be discreetly trimmed or left severely alone, but it always presents a most pleasing picture and becomes the debutante or the dowager. Straight pile velvets are also liked, the type of velvet used being an individual preference according to the latitude permitted us by the mode.

* * *

* * *

WORTH IS SHOWING some excellent tailored frocks this season that are ideal for walking purposes. The model here sketched is of tobacco brown wool crepe and is worn with a matching jacket of dyed gazelle. The collar, bolero and upper part of the pleated flounce are laid in narrow stitched folds. The jacket is slightly fitted and has an effective scarf collar. This suit shows the trend of the woolen frock with fur jacket fashion that has been incredinately successful this season.

NOTABLES HEAR WAGNER OPERA

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—From drawing room and dance the socially elect, young and old, turned last night to music and one close friend of President Von Hindenberg, of Germany, was happy.

The German American Grand Opera Company presented Richard Wagner's "Gotterdammerung" to a sold-out house. Names to conjure with were the subscribers', including German Ambassador Frederick Wilhelm Von Prittwitz Und Gaffron, the envoys of Japan, and the Netherlands, and scores of Americans.

Dr. Max Von Schillings, the new director of the 150 German singers, was entertained by President Von Hindenberg before he left home, and was given a special message of amity to transmit—along with an admonition to do his part toward cementing that friendship through his music in 27 American cities.

The director, six feet and five inches tall, succeeded Richard Strauss as head of the Staedsopera, Berlin.

TWO GET TERMS IN LAND FRAUD

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—H. G. Fitzgerald, of Columbus, O., and Alonzo E. Smith, of Philadelphia, convicted of defrauding numerous small investors in Florida land sales, were sentenced to a year each in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta.

The men were accused of defrauding persons in various parts of the country of more than $200,000 through exploitation of tracts in "Melbourne Heights," which their advertising matter, it was charged, described as a fully developed "sub-division of Melbourne," Florida. The prosecution declared the tracts were undeveloped backwoods land many miles from Melbourne. Many of the land sales were made through an office conducted in Atlantic City.

THIEVES WRECK CHURCH SAFE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Yeggmen went to church and when they came out the new safe was a wreck and minus $200 in cash and $500 in checks, received in collections.

Entering the National City Christian Church through a side window, the cracksmen pounded the safe to pieces and after taking its contents carefully mopped the remains to remove possible fingerprints.

The visitors had no trouble in locating water and a mop, which was stored by the janitor in a dark closet. Police believe the robbers may have attended services in the church.

PITTSBURGHERS END CRUISE

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Christmas at Kingston and New Year's at Havana featured a holiday cruise from which Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Morgan, Mrs. C. Hirsch, Miss Hortense Hirsch, and Herman and Bernard Windt, of Pittsburgh, returned last evening on the S. S. Franconia.

Other stops in a trip of more than forty-five hundred miles were made by the Pittsburgh travelers at Port au Prince, Colon and Nassau.

Heavy Rain Brings Relief from Drough!

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 6.—After the heaviest rainfall in three months, relief from the long drought was reported throughout Somerset and Cambria counties.

The precipitation was exceptionally heavy in Somerset and was expected to aid considerably in replenishing water supplies in all sections of the two counties.

Citizenship Class Held at Wheeling

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 6.—A three-day citizenship class is being held here at the Federal Building in charge of James B. Watkins, of the Pittsburgh Naturalization Bureau office. Fifty new applicants and 50 continued ones are before the officer and the ones passing satisfactorily will be sworn in at the May term of court.

PLAID ATHLETE FEATURES CUBAN TRIP

THE LATE 1930 activities of Pittsburgh college athletes did not end with the appearance in Forbes Field of Ted Rosenzweig, John Kaercs, Latham Fitzgerald and Charley Tolly in post season football games. The latter's showing on the gridiron was duplicated recently by Howard Eyth, of Carnegie Tech, who returned home this morning from the trip of the all-star college diamond team to Panama and Cuba. Eyth, who had the distinction of being chosen the shortstop on this first foreign invasion ever made by a picked nine of American college baseball stars, was one of the outstanding performers on the trip.

Howard Eyth

The team won all three games played, defeating the Colon and Navy players, of the Isthmian League, 4 to 2, and then jumping to Havana to score 3 to 2 and 13 to 4 victories over the Cuban Telephone Company club. Eyth was a big factor in the triumphs and his work was one of the features of the tour, particularly in the batting department. The Mars athlete was the second leading hitter of his team and started with two home runs, one in the game on the Isthmus and the other in the second Havana contest.

BUCK [illegible], CONNIE MACK'S ONE of the pitching stars of the invasion [illegible] who pitched the entire first game, holding [illegible] hitless innings and shared the slab work in the second Cuban game with Eddie McGrath, captain-elect of Harvard. Trudnak is regarded at Buckne has one of the greatest college pitchers in the country. Christy Mathewson, who was a product of the institution. Last year he first on the varsity he won 70 per cent of his games. He repeated that feat by a 7-to-0 victory over the Army.

In addition to Eyth, Trudnak and McGrath, the invading squad included Hornsby, Ashe, of Fordham, and Harry Noznesky, of Georgetown, pitchers; Frank Garrity, of Holy Cross, catcher; Bill Sullivan, of Notre Dame, first base; Jack Livezey, captain-elect of Penn State, second base; Pete Leaness, of Temple, third base, and Jim Bergen, of New York U., and Milt Mills, of Purdue, outfielders. McGrath also played in the outfield when not pitching. Mills is the Purdue slugging ace who led the Big Ten in hitting last season with the remarkable average of an even .500.

A PROPOSED BASEBALL trade that fell through in October is said to have been reopened by the Chicago National League club. If consummated, it will fill the third-base hole in the Cubs' lineup by giving them the services of Pinky Whitney, of the Phillies.

Rogers Hornsby abandoned his earlier attempt to get Whitney because the Phils demanded a [illegible] in return. But now that pitcher and the Chicago Cubs are reported to be at odds over the salary question for 1931, and the Cub management is willing to let the dissatisfied hurler go to the Quakers, the deal will consent to make a trade of Whitney.

Pinky Whitney

THE UNSETTLED STATE of affairs on the Philadelphia club following the sudden death of President William F. Baker has prevented any definite action on proposed trades, but an early decision on the new Whitney offer is looked for now that the Phillies cabinet has been reorganized, a reorganization that included the election of Lewis C. Ruch as president and the placing of former Gov. John K. Tener, of Charleroi, on the board of directors. President Ruch has been disinclined to trade Whitney, but some of the other officials are trying to persuade him that the club cannot hope to advance without new pitching strength and that a chance to get first-class material for the staff should not be overlooked.

THE FREQUENTLY HEARD charge that at some institutions of learning athletes are secretly paid for their services certainly cannot be brought against a certain school in England. That is, as far as the "secret" part goes. This school does not merely admit it. It openly advertises for athletes and offers cut rates to get them.

In last Saturday's issue of the London "Times" the following amazingly frank advertisement appeared: "To boys who are good at games—The headmaster of a small public school will accept one or two boys who show promise at athletics at reduced fees of $375, preferably over 15."

IN HIS APPOINTMENT of Murray Armentrout, popular halfback, as captain of the Carnegie Tech football team for next season, Coach Walt Steffen has given the Tartan [illegible] its first Pittsburgh field leader in eight years.

The last Pittsburgher to captain the Panther eleven was Jimmy Robertson in 1923. Armentrout will be the fourth backfield captain to be selected by the others, being preceded by Newman in 1924, Duvall Beede in 1925 and Howard Harpster in 1928.

Murray Armentrout

ONE OF THE most famous baseball greats of the old days has passed in the death at Waterbury, Conn., of Roger Connor, once noted first baseman and the Babe Ruth of the '80's. Connor played for Troy in the National League in 1880, 1881 and 1882, and for the New York Nationals from 1883, their first year in the league, until 1891, including, except for 1890, when he jumped to the Players' League club in the same city. He was released to the Phillies in 1892, but returned to New York in 1893 and continued to play there until June 22, 1894 when he was transferred to the St. Louis Nationals, remaining with that club until he finished his career in 1897. The St. Louis club had no fewer than six managers during 1895 and Roger was one of them, with Joe Quinn, Harry Diddlebock, Arlie Latham, Monte Cross and Tommy Dowd.

CONNOR WAS ONE of the greatest hitters of his time and led the National League in batting in 1885 with an average of .371. He hit well above .300 in 12 of his 18 major league seasons, his highest mark being .382 in 1887. It was because of the great size of Connor and his mates that the New York club upon its entry into the National League in 1883 was dubbed the Giants, a nickname that still sticks. All the players except Dave Richardson were big men.

During his days as a Giant, Connor was a teammate of some of the most famous players in the history of the game. Among them were Buck Ewing, John Clapp, Tom Deasley and John Humphries, catchers; Tim Keefe, Mickey Welch, John Ward, Tip O'Neil, later an outfielder, Cannonball Crane, Hank O'Day, Amos Rusie and Ledell Titcomb, Mark Baldwin, Jerrit Meeker, Buerpus Jones, Lester German and Dad Clarke, pitchers; Arthur Whitney, Danny Richardson, Jerry Denny, Dude Esterbrook, Gil Hatfield, Alex McKinnon, Jack Glasscock, Dasher Troy, George Davis and Ed Hankins, infielders, and George Gore, Jim O'Rourke, Mike Tiernan, Pat Gillespie, Mike Dorgan, Eddie Burke, George Van Haltren and Jim Stafford, outfielders.

THE GRATIFICATION AND approval with which football followers received the appointment of Assistant John P. Egan, dean of

It was just a breeze for the Dukes last night as they pried off the lid of the competition scramble in tri-state college rivals. The Dukes pasted Waynesburg's Yellow Jackets all over the Bluff gym court in handing up a 40-to-17 triumph.

In fact, the game was so easy that Del Maxie Hantzm and Yans Wallace, who officiated, might at least have had the grace to blush as they stepped up to the pay window for their dough. But they didn't.

Waynesburg showed neither a sustained offense nor a worth while defense, and the locals stepped away to a 12 point lead before the Jackets cracked the scoring ice on their own behalf. After they did count on a foul the break didn't seem to spur 'em on to any noticeable extent, for the Dukes continued to pull away. Buck McGeever's goal-getting was the big factor in the 20-to-8 lead held by the Dukes at half time.

Ganzy Benedict

DUKES FEED WELL

Duggeny's passing was [illegible] better than it was against St. Mary's Saturday, which is attested by the fact that of the first five passes five field goals resulted. Benedict and Stephens fed each other nobly. For the night Benedict had seven assists, Stephens five, and Abele and Parry each one.

Captain Parish of the Jackets did his best to get his club into the game in the second half and scored five points on two field goals and a foul, but his efforts went for naught as Benedict held without a goal during the first half broke loose for four in the second and McGeever added two more to his list for a grand total of six. He was the high individual scorer of the game with 13 points.

Frank Wolf, chief mentor of the Yellow Jackets, used various combinations in an effort to get a team on the floor that would click, but the best he could do was to get a weak "plink."

Strotz May Buy Hearst Fund's Interest in Max

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Sidney N. Strotz, president of the Chicago Stadium Corporation, and his matchmaker, Nate Lewis, left for New York yesterday to jump into the negotiations for the proposed fight between Max Schmeling, world heavyweight champion, and W. L. (Young) Stribling in Soldier Field next summer.

"We will renew our $500,000 offer to Schmeling," Strotz said, "and I believe we can sign him up. Furthermore, we are prepared to buy out the Hearst Milk Fund interest in the show. If we are lucky enough to land the match the setting will be Soldier Field. I expect the situation will break after the meeting of the New York State Athletic Commission."

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE RACE FOR A COUNTRY.—Following the Treaty of Waitengi, the rivalry between France and England for the possession of New Zealand culminated in a race between the British man-of-war, "Britomart," under Capt. Stanley, and the French frigate, "L'Aube," under Capt. Lavaud. Under instructions from their respective admiralties, they proceeded from Sydney, Australia, under full sail with New Zealand as their destination. The British boat won the race by 10 minutes, arriving on the morning of August 10, 1840, and thus securing British sovereignity for New Zealand. This is considered the race for the largest prize in history. A colony of 103,000 square miles of territory was at stake, equal to the area of Italy. (Reference: Bunner's "New Zealand Past and Present," page 103.) LORD ROBERT WINS TWO VICTORIA CROSSES.—Frederick Sleigh, Earl of Roberts (1832-1914), and great British soldier, won the Victoria Cross, the most coveted of Great Britain's orders, for his gallantry at Kali Nadi. Single-handed, he recovered a standard with which some Sepoy soldiers were fleeing. His only son fell fighting at Colenso, in the Boer War of the end of the century 15 days after the Victoria Cross was awarded to him for conspicuous gallantry. By special grant of Parliament, Lord Roberts was permitted to wear his son's decoration beside his own—the only instance in history of two Victoria crosses being worn by one man.

Johnson Improved, Soon to Leave Hospital

WEAR TO QUIT CUB BODY

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Fitz Eugene Dixon is expected to succeed Joseph W. Wear of Philadelphia, as chairman of the Davis Cup committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Wear today confirmed reports that he is giving up the post held since February, 1929, when he succeeded Julian S. Myrick, of New York.

The Philadelphian explained that pressure of business coupled with his obligations as chairman of the alumni board of Yale University, compelled him to relinquish certain other activities, tennis being among them.

Wear is not in the field for a vice presidency in the administration that will succeed that of President Louis B. Dailey, who goes out of office next month.

Louis J. Carruthers, now first vice president is expected to succeed Dailey and it was considered certain that Wear would be tendered the Davis Cup chairmanship.

However, it is believed that Wear's wishes in the matter of his successor will be respected.

M'GRAW MADE RACE JUDGE

CLEVELAND, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Thirteen weeks of big line harness racing were scheduled for the summer of 1931 at the annual meeting of the stewards of the Grand Circuit here yesterday. Failure to include a Toledo meeting was the outstanding surprise.

Unless the unforseen develops the Fort Miami track at Toledo will be out of the Grand Circuit picture for the first time in 13 years. Tracks at Syracuse, N. Y., and Milwaukee also failed to schedule meets.

North Randall track at Cleveland will open the season with two weeks of racing, June 29 to July 11. It also agreed to take the week of August 17 to 22, if it could land the $60,000 Hambletonian 3-year-old trot.

The circuit stewards recommended that Joseph M. McGraw, prominent racing official from Washington, Pa., be appointed presiding judge at all circuit meetings and that two events for amateur reinsmen be staged at each session.

French Runners To Compete In U.S. Next Month

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—An invitation extended by the Amateur Athletic Union for a French invasion of American indoor tracks in February has been accepted on behalf of Seraphin Martin and Paul Keller, two sensational middle distance runners.

In announcing the receipt of a cablegram of acceptances from the French Athletic Federation, Daniel J. Ferris, secretary of the A. A. U., said it was expected the two visitors would appear in half a dozen eastern meets including the National A. A. U. championships at Madison Square Garden February 25.

BENNY BASS KEEPS TITLE

The bout was fought along the same lines as marked a non-title battle between the Philadelphia boys six weeks ago. Bass winning the verdict. Benny's heavy cannonading to the body slowed down the challenger after the first few rounds, and it required all Massey's boxing skill to escape a knockout punch in the closing sessions. A capacity crowd of 10,000 saw the battle.

ROSENZWEIG HOME

Carnegie Tech's star end, Ted Rosenzweig, who played for Andy Kerr's All-Eastern team December 27 in San Francisco, returned to his scholastic work yesterday, having arrived in the city Sunday night. He was not accompanied by Dutch Baker, Pitt's backfield star and co-captain of the basketball team, who will not arrive home until later this week.

RUCH ELECTED PHILS' HEAD

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The Philadelphia National League Club, at its annual meeting yesterday, elected Lewis Charles Ruch, a retired business man of Brooklyn, as president of the Phillies. Ruch, who is 68, succeeds William F. Baker, of New York, who died suddenly in Montreal recently.

The only statement issued was: "The business affairs of the club are in excellent condition and with the addition of the new players, the prospects of a winning ball club for the coming season are very bright."

The election of directors brings back to the baseball stage John K. Tener, of Charleroi, Pa., former governor of Pennsylvania, and at one time president of the National League.

Other officers elected include Douglas Nicholson, a New York lawyer, as vice president. He is said to represent the interests of Mrs. Baker. Gerald P. Nugent was re-elected business manager; Robert F. Irwin, Jr., a Philadelphia lawyer, was elected secretary, and Mrs. Nugent, wife of the business manager, was elected treasurer and assistant secretary.

FIFTH OPPOSES SCHENLEY IN OPENER

CITY LEAGUE GAMES TODAY.
SECTION I
Schenley at Fifth, Westinghouse at Allderdice, Peabody at Westinghouse, Langley at Middle[illegible].
SECTION II
[illegible] at Oliver, South Hills at [illegible], Allegheny at Carrick.

A program bursting with contests and promising hectic action in all sections and divisions heralds the opening of the City League and W. P. I. A. L. championship basketball campaigns today. No fewer than 60 games are listed for this afternoon and evening, with all sections of both leagues busy.

Strenuous tests are to be served championship contenders right off the bat. In the City League, where Chester Briggs' title-holding Fifth Avenue High team hopes to retain the honors it has held for the past two years, the Uptowners must square off with a team which figures to be a leading contender for the crown, Schenley. This game is the headliner in Section I.

OLIVER VS. SOUTH HILLS

In Section II, where South Hills ruled last year, finishing second to Fifth for the league title in the annual play-off series, Oliver, of the North Side, will attempt to gain a decision over the reigning champs, South Hills, in the initial tussle.

The identical situations exist for sectional champions in the W. P. I. A. L., hardly a one but must face the stiffest sort of opposition. Most of the schools have played difficult pre-season schedules and the coaches have been able to get more or less true lines on the abilities of their quintets. In these pre-campaign tussels, New Kensington, W. P. I. A. L. and Section I champions; New Castle, of Section III; Ambridge, of Section II; Monessen, of Section V; Uniontown, of Section X; Homestead, of Section VII; Swissvale, of Section XI, and North Braddock, of Section VIII.

HARD TILTS CARDED

The tussling in the City League bids fair to be the most strenuous and exciting of the past decade. In Section II, both Westinghouse and Schenley are determined to wrest the title from Fifth, with the sectional title, that of the league also. Peabody, which does not open until Friday, also has served notice that it will be very much in the running.

Today, Fifth tackles Schenley at Fifth Avenue; Westinghouse takes on Allderdice at Allderdice and South, the team that came close to upsetting Fifth's applecart last year, meets Connelley.

LANGLEY PLAYS

In Section II, Oliver and South Hills meet at South Hills; Langley takes on Vocational on the North Side and Allegheny travels to the South Side to meet Ted Lyon's Carrick passers at Carrick.

FIELDS ACCOMPANIES JACKETS ON ROAD TRIP

LOCALS BATTLE WINDSOR SIX TONIGHT

By CARL W. SHATTO

Whitey Fields, star center, who scored three goals against Detroit here Saturday night, was among those present when the Yellow Jacket puckmen set sail for Windsor last night.

Fields sustained a bad cut when hit in the face with a hard-shot puck in the workout at the Garden Sunday afternoon, but the club physician patched him up late yesterday and it was decided that he could accompany his mates on their Canadian invasion.

MAY ADVANCE

The locals meet the Bulldogs in Windsor tonight, and should they add to their string of successes against the second-placers they will pass the idle London team and vault into fifth place in the standings. The Jackets are to meet the Tecumsehs in London tomorrow, and after this joust both clubs will advance on Pittsburgh to resume their warfare here Saturday night.

Before departing last night Coach Charles Reid said that he might not send Fields into action if the Jackets were able to get the jump on their foemen. Eddie Rodden, recently purchased from the New York Rangers, is an experienced center, and he may skate in Fields' position if the latter does not feel at his best tomorrow.

PLAYERS FARMED

A Polish player from British Columbia, John Joseph Kwasney, has been added to the list of Yellow Jacket tryouts. He arrived yesterday, and, not being in condition, Owner Schooley shipped him off to the Niagara Falls farm for training. He is 21, is 6 feet 2, weighs 196, and is a star boardshooting defenseman. Frock Lowrey, veteran star, has been let out to Niagara Falls on option.

The Jackets gained a victory and two ties in three previous meetings with Windsor, and they are the only foemen that the Bulldogs have not been able to down. London has defeated the Schooley skaters twice in as many attempts. This record would indicate that the Jackets will find the Bulldogs more submissive than the Tecumsehs, but in this case the records are very misleading, for Windsor undoubtedly is the stronger club. The Jackets figure to "take" London, and they will be greatly surprised if they don't even the season series with the Tecumsehs here Saturday.

COX STAYS HOME

Goalie Albie Cox did not accompany his mates on the trip, but Bud Fisher has been doing fine work in the nets, and the locals are not likely to suffer from any defense weakness.

John Kwasney, a 196-pound defense man from the coal mines of British Columbia, and Frock Lowrey, who came here for a trial last week, have been sent to Schooley's Niagara Falls farm. Kwasney, only 21 years of age, was sent to the Falls farm for more seasoning after reporting at the Garden for a tryout yesterday. Lowrey may return to the squad as soon as he achieves better condition. The probable lineup for tonight's game:

Pittsburgh	Pos.	Windsor
Fisher	G	Benedict
Fraser	L. D.	Bellemer
Berlett	R. D.	S. Brown
Courlette	C.	Robinson
Froudkek	L. W.	Lever
Gregg	R. W.	Duncan

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The Montreal Maroons have sent three young players, Paul Haynes, Desse Roche and Al Huggins, to the Windsor Club, of the International League, for further seasoning. The undefeated Irene Kaufmann Settlement House Reserves will be out to clinch the first half championship of the Wagner Institutional League next Friday night when the Center avenue passers engage Aubrey Davies' Trinity Cathedral quintet in the preliminary to the I. K. S.-Ormes battle.

The Settlement House passers, led by Nat Singer, captain and star forward of the team, are undefeated so far this season and at the present time compare favorably with the strongest light first-class teams in this section of the state. Singer has proved himself a capable leader and his all-around work has been one of the main reasons why the I. K. S. has led from the first game. Singer performs at forward for the Settlement quintet. He is an excellent shot and a fine floor man.

Fintex will be out to sew up the Allegheny County League championship tonight when it meets the Duquesne Lafayettes at Columbus Temple. A defeat for Fintex will pave the way for a triple deadlock for first place with the Lafayettes and Mieles the other clubs involved.

Trinity Cathedral Royals travel to Charleroi, where they battle the H. & B. Chevrolet A. C. tonight.

The Tri-State Conference opens its campaign tonight with Geneva and Thiel doing the honors in a meeting at Beaver Falls. Geneva, by virtue of having shown real ability in pre-season tilts, while the Lutherans looked to be just another ball club, is favored to scramble out of the fracas with the major share of the points, and of course, the honors.

GARDEN BATTLE TO ATTRACT NOTABLES

Sports Editor.

Bill Duffy, the big Silver Slipper night club man of New York, prominent as the "front guy" for Primo Carnera on the Venetian's tour of the United States, and an old pal of Jack Dempsey, will be here himself, in person, with Johnny Indrisano, Boston welterweight, whom he manages, for the latter's bout with Paul Pirrone, Cleveland belter, in Motor Square Garden next Monday night. He has advised Matchmaker Jules Beck, of the Garden, that not only will he be on deck, and to give his regards meanwhile to Art Rooney and some other friends here, but he will bring along Len Harvey, the European middleweight champion, who fights Vince Dundee in his American debut in Madison Square Garden, New York, Friday night. Len will be introduced to the cash customers and may come on here later for a fight. Duffy also manages him.

MADGE TO BOX HOLT

The local Garden is figuring on matching Billy Holt, Homewood Negro, with Larry Madge, of Cleveland, for its semi-final, and will have Jimmy Belmont in the second bout and Jimmy Riley in the opener.

Promoter Apples Meyers expects to close his preliminary card today for his Frankie Chatterton-Eddie Brannon show in the Moose Temple, downtown, Friday night. He has S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, and Muscle Scholes, of the North Side, matched for the semi-final, their third meeeting, and will have Marcus Noll, Negro middleweight, as one of the principals in the second bout.

This Charleston has quite a record. He has boxed Stanislaus Loayza, Maxie Strub and Joey Goodman, among others. He is a blond and a good right-hand puncher.

Between Rounds

Andy Vasky, of Bellaire, O., makes his debut as a fight promoter in the Market Auditorium, of Wheeling, next Monday night, when he will present Willie Davies, of Charleroi, and Marty Gold, of Philadelphia, in his 10-round main bout. Davies and Gold have fought a number of times.

Jim McGirr, McKeesport promoter, has signed Joe Marino, of McKeesport, to box Georgie Scotak, of Irwin, in the feature bout of his double windup card Thursday night headlined by Frank Novak against Chet Johnson and Billy Brent against Johnny Kerr.

Johnny Risko, veteran heavyweight, of Cleveland, has been signed to box Max Baer in Madison Square Garden, New York, January 30, following his battle with Jim Maloney in Boston, January 19, and Baer's tilt with Tom Heeney in the Garden, January 16. The Maloney fight will be the fourth meeting between the pair.

Gorilla Jones meets a substitute of Chick Devlin at San Francisco Friday night. Devlin having suffered a cut eye. Sammy O'Dell, his Akron stablemate, will be one of the preliminaries. Jones also boxes Jimmy Duffy at Oakland, Cal., January 15.

K. O. Christner's next start will be against Bud Doran, of Chicago, at Peoria, Ill., Thursday night. Chris also meets Tiger Jack Payne at Omaha January 21, and Babe Hunt at Oklahoma City later.

Billy Jones, Negro lightweight, boxes George Blakemore in an eight-rounder in Philadelphia Thursday night. Pat Haley boxes Jimmy Smith in the same city Friday night.

Young Corbett boxes Paulie Walker at Los Angeles next Tuesday night and Sammy Jackson at San Francisco, January 30; Jackson also is matched for a non-title bout with Tommy Freeman, the welterweight champion, in Los Angeles next month.

Jimmy McNamara boxes Joe Barbara, Solly Schwartz meets Phil Rafferty, Georgie Duquesne University law school, as judge of Common Pleas Court, was not unmixed with a sense of loss. For in the probability that the new judge will give up gridiron work, football loses one of the best officials it ever had.

After the 1930 season Attorney Egan was ranked first among the officials of the East, with a mark of 4.86 out of a possible 5, but for a long time previously he had been given that rating by many football coaches, players, graduate managers and patrons in general. His knowledge of the rules, absolute fairness and all-around ability to handle a game as it ought to be handled made him an official just about as close to perfection as they come. Football loses something in his going.

George M. Lott, Jr.

LIKE BUCK O'CONNOR, Wesley Fesler and other stars now leaving college football, George M. Lott, Jr., and John Van Ryn, Davis Cup tennis players, find no appeal in professional careers in their game. Both have definitely turned down propositions to turn pro and join Bill Tilden and Karel Kozeluh on their indoor tour which opens in New York February 18. "I am not interested," said Lott in announcing his decision. "Tilden spoke to me about it on his recent visit to Philadelphia, but I rejected it. John Van Ryn, one of my Davis Cup teammates of 1930, also was mentioned in connection with the tour, but I believe he feels the same way about it as I do. We are planning to play in the Canadian indoor championships at Montreal the middle of January and may compete in several other indoor tournaments this winter." Van Ryn bore out Lott by saying: "I am still an amateur, and will continue as such. Lott and I will play singles in Canada and also doubles. The Tilden tour does not appeal to me."

THE FIRST DEFENSE of a fistic title in the new year turned out successfully for the champion. Benny Bass retaining his synthetic junior lightweight crown by punching his way to a decision over Lew Massey in 10 rounds at Philadelphia last night.

But that doesn't necessarily indicate that it's going to be a favorable year for the ring champs, one in which they will escape a repetition of the jinx that toppled seven of them during 1930. On the contrary there's a heap of woe in prospect for them. The present list of ring rulers isn't at all impressive, and if they can be made to meet worthy challengers it is strongly probable that the majority of them will be knocked off their perches before the arrival of 1932.

Equipoise Rated 'Tucky Derby Favorite

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—It's a long cry from January's wintry blast to the Kentucky Derby, but already the future books are forecasting that C. V. Whitney's Equipoise will be out in front when the turf's best 3-year-olds thunder past the judges' stand at Churchill Downs on Saturday, May 16.

The winter book-makers have established the Whitney ace as the 6-to-1 favorite. Very little wagering is reported, however.

According to word from Manager Ray Alvis, Tony Herrera has overstayed his vacation period in El Paso, Tex., and has been ordered back to Chicago to enter training for a bout at the Moose Temple here late this month.

Billy Bulley, Mt. Clemens (Mich.) welterweight, who was knocked out in two rounds by Young Jody at the Moose Temple last Friday night, has returned home to recuperate from the setback. He plans to come back here later for action.

George Panka, Homestead heavyweight will resume training Thursday for a comeback following his two recent defeats by Emmett Rocco and Kid Christner in the Motor Square ring. He wants to meet both in return bouts either here or elsewhere in the tri-state district.

CAWSEY TO BE W. PA. PRO

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

While wholesale changes in professional ranks at district country clubs are not expected for next season, there is no question of doubt that several new faces will be found behind the display cases in several of the golf workshops.

We have it on pretty good authority that our old friend, Jack Cawsey, who has been notable in the role of professional at Lake Chautauqua, will hold down a job in Western Pennsylvania next summer, just where he will be located has not been announced, however.

Cawsey seen in the past has been in competitions hereabouts, especially in qualifying rounds for National championships, and has earned a fine reputation for himself both as a golfer of skill and an instructor of note. Invariably, each fall at Chautauqua, Cawsey arranges an exhibition match in which Walter Hagen plays, the most recent affair including Horton Smith and Wild Bill Mehlhorn.

It would not be surprising news if Cawsey was to be announced as assistant to Emil (Dutch) Loeffler, famous greenkeeper and professional at Oakmont. On the other hand, Ned McKenna is just as likely to be re-signed.

MIAMI AMATEUR OPENS

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The Simon pures of Florida winter golfdom will trek across the links today to open the search for Miami mid-winter amateur tournament honors.

Jimmy West, formerly of Atlanta and now of Miami, will lead the crowd of non-professionals in qualifying play as he defends his 1930 title. Match play will start tomorrow and continue through Saturday.

FARLEY IS PAL OF SHARKEY, MAX HOLDS

BERLIN, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Max Schmeling, writing in the Berliner Zeitung, says he will defend his world heavyweight title in Chicago against any opponent picked by the National Boxing Commission, but that he will not defend it in a New York ring where he won it.

Schmeling said he would not enter an American ring where the New York Athletic Commission had anything to say about the referee.

The German boxer had some harsh things to say about the New York commission and especially James J. Farley, its chairman.

"Only with bleeding heart and after many days' deliberation could the commission headed by Mister Farley bring itself to recognize me as the winner of the title bout." Schmeling wrote, "while the National Boxing Commission, with 33 states behind it, recognized me the day after the fight.

"Mister Farley, good friend of Jack Sharkey, never could reconcile himself to a non-American holding title and naturally wants to set all wheels in motion to hoist this friend Sharkey on to the throne."

He said he was making his statement at this time to give German sport fans a clear view of the American pugilistic scene, particularly since the next few days, perhaps, may bring the news that the New York commission has disallowed his world championship title.

GLASGOW TEAM TO TOUR U. S.

By TOM BIRKS.

Jimmy McKinley, of the Northwestern New York State Soccer Football Association, left Pittsburgh after the national amateur cup committee meeting with favorable comment for Steel City hospitality. Bill Angus, of Cleveland, has been here many times and he is well acquainted with treatment accorded visitors here. McKinley was making his first trip to Pittsburgh, after many years in organized soccer, and the boys did a fine job of showing him a good time.

Angus was loaded with real soccer information. The great Glasgow Celtics have been persuaded to tour the United States. The Rangers have been seen here many times, but the Celtics, outside of Aston Villa, should prove the greatest attraction to come to these shores. Whether a move will be made to bring the Celtics to Pittsburgh remains to be seen.

Angus is favorable to holding the 1932 convention of the United States Football Association in Pittsburgh. It has been 14 years since Tommy Cahill and his showmen anchored here. He also stated a movement has been started to form a Western Interstate Conference. Ohio, Missouri, Illinois and Michigan would be the initial quartet, with a place left open for Western Pennsylvania, if opportunity affords the local governing body to operate.

A meeting of the Keystone League will be held at the office of President Phillip Hillen, on Thursday evening at 7:30. All managers have been requested to be on hand.

Dunlevy's poor showing at Castle Shannon on Sunday is causing much discussion among soccer fans. It is a team good enough to put Morgan out of the West Penn cup, and it took a 13-1 beating at Shannon. George Grandy had a very weak team, which was not fair to Shannon fans. Dunlevy can give any club a run if its regular team is on the field.

Conley to Coach La Salle Eleven

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Tom Conley, end and captain on Notre Dame's national championship 1930 football team, will coach the La Salle College eleven here next fall.

La Salle is a new college, having opened last February. Its 1931 eleven will be the first to represent the institution.

HANDBALL STAR DOWNS MANOS

A packed gallery of noon-time fans watched Merritt A. Bates, of Columbus, O., national Y. M. C. A. handball singles champion, defeat Theos Manos, city champion in two out of three strenuous matches on the No. 2 court of the Downtown Y today.

Merritt, a tall, rangy and ambidexterous player, who won his title in the National Y tournament in St. Louis in February, defeated Manos 21-15, 18-21 and 21-17. Manos gave the champion some real handball all the way in each match.

In the final game, the local star took a lead of 9-3 by recording four points on his fourth serve, but Merritt rallied strongly and pulled even at 10-all. He led then at 11 to 10, but Manos in turn staged a rally and went ahead again at 15-14. Merritt pulled out in front with a prolonged rally on his own service, finally winning out.

The champion is booked to meet Steve Myers and Manos again this evening, beginning at 8 p. m.

TECH NAMES ARMENTROUT CAPTAIN

Armentrout's appointment, which was decided upon by Wally Steffen, advisory coach, and Bob Waddell, head coach, was ratified by the Tech athletic council at a special meeting last night. He is the second Tech player to win the captaincy by the appointive method, John Dreshar having led the team during the campaigns of 1929 and 1930 as the first appointed leader.

Armentrout prepped at Schenley High School, where he was a center. He also attended Hun school, where he was converted into an end. He was used at a wing position his freshman year at Carnegie.

STOCK MARKET BEGINS SLOW ADVANCE

Recessions of Earlier Trading Eliminated and Gains Are Recorded

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP.)—The stock market found it difficult either to decline or to rally today, but had a little better success with the latter movement than with the former.

Resumption of realizing and short selling at the opening provided a downward trend, but much of the recession was overcome when the leaders had sunk to a point or two. Bears became somewhat cautious and covered, with the result that the market regained its recessions and began a slow advance. Volume remained small, although the rally, though the best embraced a rather broad list of issues with the tobacco, rails and food shares prominent.

Commission houses believed the market had further ground to cover on the rebound before an important reaction was encountered, although it was rather generally agreed that the rise might well be based solely on technical considerations. There is still some concern over the action of the commodities, especially silver bullion, which made new lows today in both New York and London.

Reports that automobile plants and to a lesser extent the railroads are re-employing labor made encouraging reading, and added support to the opinion held by some observers that the unemployment curve would reach its lowest point some time this month.

Wall Street expects the steel operations figures appearing tomorrow, to show an increase. Demand from the railroads and from the automotive trade has been picking up, and the development of a seasonal upward trend is anticipated.

Although the increasing strength of bonds may not prove to be the first stage of the long-awaited bull market in those securities, the gains of the last 10 days are regarded most favorably, since they seem to indicate that the special conditions which forced bonds down early in December are no longer present. A strong bond market, it is argued, would be a truly bullish development.

Money was cheap and plentiful. Funds were offered privately at a concession from the stock exchange renewal rate of 1½ per cent.

Treasury Considers Long-Term Issue

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The Treasury Department is giving consideration to the possibility of a long-term bond issue in connection with its financing on March 15, next. It is reported that the Treasury while seeking additional authority to issue $8,000,000,000 of bonds under the second Liberty loan act, does not need this authority for the March 15 financing as there are still available for the issue under that act $1,800,000,000 of bonds.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Torrential downpours delaying the Argentine harvest and injuring wheat quality, gave early firmness to grains today. Australian harvest advices and winter crop conditions in Missouri and Kansas were also unfavorable. Opening unchanged to ⅛c off, wheat later hardened somewhat. Corn started at ⅛@¼c decline, but afterward scored gains.

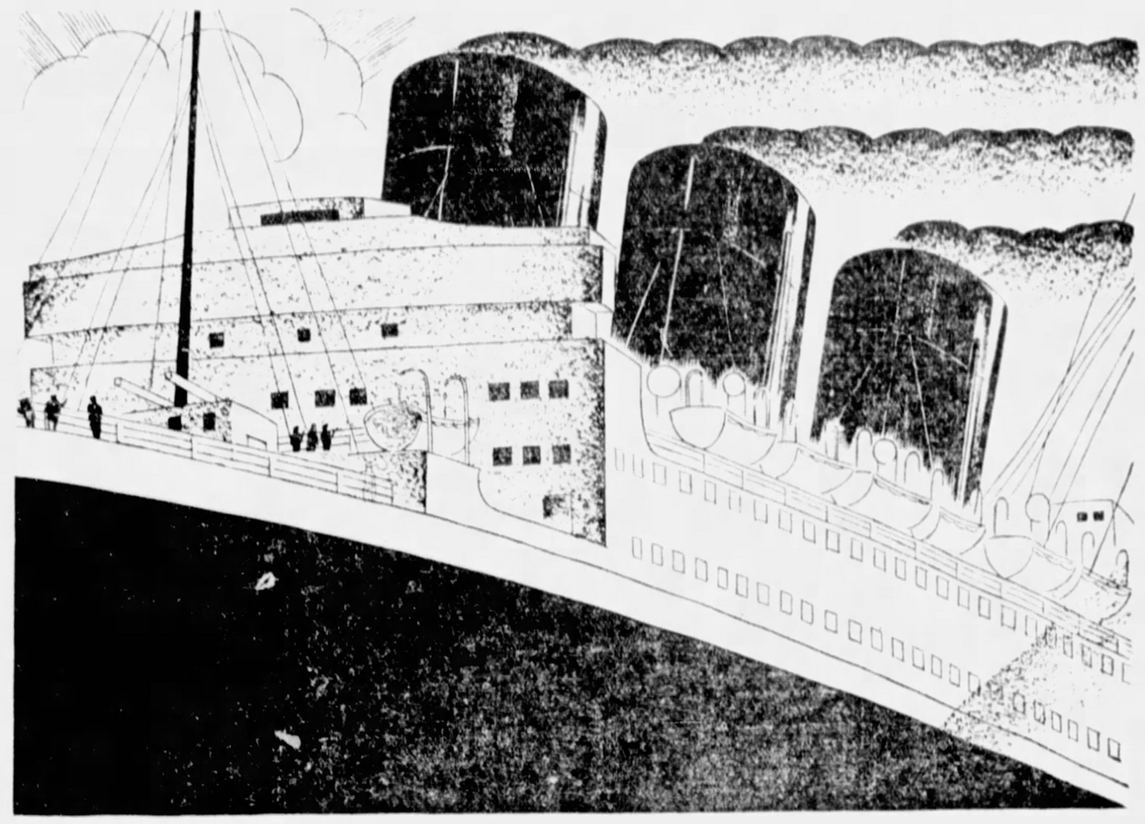
NEW YORK BOND QUOTATIONS



A Mediterranean Cruise for your Winter Vacation

A vacation, at any time of the year, should include, not only the means for absolute rest, but an entire change of activity — new lands, new people, new thoughts. Nothing else you could plan for your vacation would provide these requisites as quickly, as thoroughly or at as little expense as a cruise to the Mediterranean.

Your vacation begins the day your steamer sails from New York. Lounging luxuriously on the deck of a cruise-ship, under the warm, tropical sun, or joining in the gay round of parties with your cruise-companions, you quickly learn to forget the cares of business and the chilly winds of the northern winter you have so fortunately escaped.

You have your choice of fourteen cruises, ranging in length from 30 to 73 days, and offering a wide range of prices beginning as low as $250 . . . The Mellon Travel Bureau will gladly furnish complete descriptions of any of these cruises, and help select the cruise that best fits your desires. The Bureau will also make reservations for you and attend to many other necessary details in preperation for the trip. Reservations for the best locations must be made early.

Plan of Readjustment

Wheeling Traction Company

5% First Consolidated Mortgage Gold Bonds

TO THE HOLDERS OF 5% FIRST CONSOLIDATED MORTGAGE GOLD BONDS OF WHEELING TRACTION COMPANY:

Wheeling Traction Company has announced that it will be unable to pay the principal and interest of its 5% First Consolidated Mortgage Gold Bonds on January 1, 1931. In common with other traction companies of the country, the Company's earnings have been adversely affected in recent years by bus and automobile competition with its lines. The severe financial depression this year has further adversely affected earnings. We understand that for the first time in its history, the Company has failed to earn the interest on its Bonds.

A Plan of Readjustment has been formulated to extend to January 1, 1941 the principal of the debt represented by the Bonds. The debt is to continue to have the benefit of the same security as it now has and is to continue to bear interest at the rate of 5% per annum, payable semi-annually. Payment of interest for five years to and inclusive of the semi-annual interest payment due January 1, 1936 will be guaranteed by West Penn Railways Company.

The Plan will be consummated if possible by stamping the present bonds with a notation of the extension of the guaranty of interest as above mentioned by West Penn Railways Company. To consummate the Plan, however, in the foregoing manner will require unanimous consent of the Bondholders. If not possible to obtain such consent, a receivership for Wheeling Traction Company and foreclosure of the mortgage securing the Bonds will become inevitable. In such case the Committee hereinafter mentioned will have discretion to carry out the Plan through such foreclosure and the issuance to Bondholders who participate in the Plan of new bonds in the same amount secured by a new first mortgage on the same properties; such new bonds to be dated January 1, 1931 and to mature January 1, 1941, and to bear interest at the rate of 5% per annum, payable semi-annually, the payment of such interest to and inclusive of the semi-annual interest payment due January 1, 1936 to be guaranteed by West Penn Railways Company. Such new bonds, in the discretion of the Committee, may be issued by Wheeling Traction Company or by some other corporation which may acquire the properties.

Only Bondholders who become parties to the Plan will secure the benefit of the guaranty of interest by West Penn Railways Company.

West Penn Railways Company furthermore has agreed to pay Bondholders who become parties to the Plan the interest due January 1, 1931 on their present bonds, and the Depositaries will be instructed to forward checks for this interest upon receipt of deposits.

The undersigned have agreed to serve as a Bondholders' Committee to receive deposits of Bonds and to carry out the Plan upon the conditions set forth in a Plan and Agreement, copies of which may be had on application to the Secretary of the Committee or to either of the Depositaries.

THE TIME WITHIN WHICH DEPOSITS MAY BE MADE WILL EXPIRE MARCH 2, 1931.

Bondholders desiring to become parties to the Plan may do so by becoming parties to the Agreement through deposit of their Bonds with January 1, 1931 coupons attached, with either of the Depositaries, receiving in exchange therefor transferable Certificates of Deposit issued by the Depositary with which such Bonds are deposited.

A form of letter of transmittal for use of Depositors of Bonds may be obtained from the Secretary of the Committee or from either Depositary and should at once be signed and forwarded to either Depositary, with Bonds, to enable the Committee promptly to carry out the Plan.

Depositors will be under no expense either in connection with the Plan or with the deposit of Bonds.

Big Losses Shown by Management Trusts

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

WHAT WILL HAPPEN to the investment trusts when and if we have a bear market? This question was asked in this column on September 6, 1929. That was shortly before the break in the stock market.

The answer is being given in the annual reports of the management type of investment trusts which are being published for the past year. In this discussion management type trusts should not be confused with fixed trusts which are subject to entirely different conditions and which are being taken into consideration.

In speaking of management trusts when stocks were nearing their peaks, this column said:

"Had the development of this type of corporation been confined to purely investment operations, the securities of investment trusts would certainly suffer no more than those of industrial companies. In all probability they would offer greater resistence to a downward trend in the price of stocks.

Speculative Activities

"THEORETICALLY, AN INVESTMENT trust offers a means whereby individual investors can secure greater safety of principal and income through wide diversification of holdings. In theory the securities held should yield enough in dividends or interest to pay the holders of investment trust stocks a reasonable return on their capital.

"In actual practice, however, a large share of the investment trusts have not had enough dividend return to make their earnings very attractive. Many of them have relied on trading activities to make by far the lion's share of their profits. It is these trading activities, not fixed returns, that have been responsible for the enormous profits of some investment organizations and their rapid development during the past few years.

"But what will happen when the present easy profit stock market comes to an end? The investment trusts which happen to have securities yielding a good return will not have to worry, but what of the organizations which have not accumulated holdings with an attractive yield? It seems quite probable that some of these organizations may show sickening drops in their profits if this day catches them unawares."

Questions Answered

INVESTMENT TRUST ANNUAL reports are giving adequate answers to all these questions. The Lehman Corporation was one of the first to publish its report. This showed profit from interest, dividends and commissions of $1,545,102 for the six months ended December 31, 1930. This was equivalent to $1.54 a share on 1,000,000 shares of stock. But after charging off $2,911,658 loss on the sales of securities, net loss for the six months was $1,366,556.

The last previous report covering the period from September 24, 1929, to June 30, 1930, showed net income of $1,819,948 after deducting loss from the sale of securities. This was equivalent to $1.81 a share on the stock. The result for the full period of the company's operation since its formation in September, 1929, has been a net income of $453,392 or 45 cents a share on an original investment of $104 a share for the stockholders or a total investment of $104,000,000.

Assets Depreciate

THIS DOES NOT tell the entire story. The unrealized loss based on market quotations at the end of 1930, had increased $12,381,000 since June 30. Valuing securities at not in excess of market quotations, the net asset value of the capital stock as of December 31, 1930, was approximately $73.81 a share comparing with $88.97 on June 30, 1930 and $91.54 on December 31, 1929.

Naturally shrinkage in the valuation of the portfolio of any investment trust would be almost certain to take place during such a year. If return from interest and dividends had been maintained at a satisfactory level there would be no reflection on the management. But protection of principal and return has not been secured.

Dividends at the rate of $3 a share were initiated on the stock with the payment on June 3, 1930. Obviously this dividend has not been earned.

The statements of other investment trusts will be discussed as they appear.

TIGER HEART -:- By Robert Terry Shannon

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The day before her marriage to Jim Tracy, wealthy Connie Calvert learns through Duke Garson, underworld character, of the existence of a half-sister, Kitty, by her father's secret first marriage. Kitty, a produce of the slums, demands $100,000 for her silence. Connie, glad to have found her sister, offers to take her home. Kitty refuses. Connie is favorably impressed by Duke's magnetism. When Jim objects to her interest in Kitty, Connie breaks her engagement. She realizes Jim is mainly interested in her money and that she does not love him. Connie tells her mother about Kitty. Connie sees Kitty and learns of her laborious daily struggle for existence. Kitty goes home with Connie and is welcomed by Mrs. Calvert. When Jim visits he takes an interest in Kitty. Connie, believing Jim a philanderer, is concerned for Kitty. Kitty admits that she likes Jim, but is afraid that he does not like her. Connie warns her of his selfishness. Connie's distrust of Jim causes her to seek Garson's aid.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVI.

The presence of Duke Garson brought a stimulating surge of well-being to Connie. She noticed, immediately, that he was not impressed by the spacious dimensions of her home as Kitty had been. He seemed, in fact, utterly unconscious of his surroundings; as he followed her into the living room his tall, athletic body moved with cat-like grace; his dark eyes were inscrutable.

They sat down and Garson waited for her to speak. Faced with necessity, Connie felt, almost, that her sending for him had been a little foolish. Too, she thought she detected in his grave patience a flavor of condemnation.

Asks for Story

"I suppose I might as well come to the point at once," she said, carefully. "Kitty has fallen in love with the man I had intended to marry. I am convinced that he is hardly more than a fortune hunter. Within a short time she will have a considerable sum of money in her own right and I'm convinced Jim Tracy is going after it."

"And you want me to head them off so Kitty can keep her money for herself—is that it?"

"Exactly."

"This is all such sudden news to me, Miss Calvert, that I want to get it straight. You're sure, are you, that you are no longer in love with this Tracy yourself?"

She could feel herself flush under the close scrutiny of his steady, unrevealing eyes. He was like a physician inquiring about symptoms—utterly impersonal.

"I never was in love with Jim Tracy—I just thought I was. That part of it is all out of my head now. I only want to keep Kitty away from the trap I almost got into myself."

"What makes you think I can help you, Miss Calvert?"

In truth, Connie did indeed wonder at the strange faith in Duke Garson that had caused her to summon him here to her house. Was it because he knew Kitty so well? Or was it—she speculated hesitatingly—on account of some hidden attraction he had for her personally. This thought was too humiliating to acknowledge, but she was conscious of an inner burning as she sped it out of her mind. No, all that was wanted from Duke Garson was his hard, practical wisdom of sordid motives, his sharp, cold-blooded understanding of tricky minds.

"Tell me the whole story from the beginning," he requested.

Duke Indifferent

It was not easy for Connie to narrate the history of her love affair with Jim Tracy, now, when it came to putting it into words, she was amazed to find her self-description painting her in such shallow colors. Looking back, it was incomprehensible that she had drifted into an engagement with Jim Tracy so lightly. Almost, she had bartered her whole life without the propelling motive of deep love. Yet she had done no more than a thousand—a million—other girls, only her good sense, at the last, had snatched her back from the abyss. She was able, reluctantly, to convey all this to Duke Garson as a background for Kitty and Jim. Duke Garson listened, without asking questions, until she finished.

"Just what," Garson asked, "do you expect me to do?"

"You can do a lot of things I can't. If I try to warn Kitty she'd probably think I was jealous. Someone, somehow, must make her see the truth about Jim Tracy, or her whole life would be ruined. Just now, at the beginning, when she has a chance to rise up out of her past, I don't want to see her toss all of her chances for real happiness away by making a terrible mistake. After all, she is my sister, you know."

"I'm curious to know why you called on me," Garson told her.

"You are wise," Connie said, honestly.

"In my own line I'm not considered exactly a fool, but this is new stuff for me, Miss Calvert. I've had no experience in making or breaking matches. If Kitty's head has been turned, believe me, I haven't the slightest idea how to twist it back again into its proper place. That's a racket for somebody else."

"Your mother lives here with you, I believe; she will be able to give you advice."

But her mother, she explained, was suffering from nervous exhaustion and must not be burdened with further worries; also, it was probable that Mrs. Calvert would leave in a few days to visit relatives who were sojourning for a month in Maine. A change of surroundings, a physician had said, would prove immediately beneficial.

Startles Connie

"No. Mother is no help in this," Connie declared. "If you don't help, I suppose Kitty will just have to have her Jim."

"Perhaps that would be best," Garson said unexpectedly.

Connie was startled at his apparent challenge to her viewpoint; without reason, she had assumed he was in agreement with her.

"You told me how you think things are," Garson corrected her quietly.

"How can you say what is best for other people? Suppose Jim Tracy isn't an ideal character? Perhaps Kitty isn't, either. Few people are. No, I'm afraid the responsibility of deciding love affairs for others is too great for me, Miss Calvert."

"Oh, no, I'll help you out any time you are in trouble, Miss Calvert," Garson said, smiling for the first time. "However, I have enough on my conscience as it is without trying to blight Kitty's romance. She's probably having the time of her life and she has a few thrills coming to her, poor girl. I can't believe, either, that this fellow Tracy is an out and out crook. Myself, I don't mind a little crooked work, or a lot of it, for that matter. In fact, it's right in my line, but I'm not crooked enough to interfere with the first big jolt of happiness a kid like Kitty has ever had."

Connie's face burned.

"What do you—are you insinuating that I am doing something crooked, dishonorable—"

"No, you are what is called a good woman," he said, softly. "You have thought of something I would never have dreamed of. I don't know whether or not it is safe to leave Kitty under your influence."

DAILY TRUE STORY Hard-Boiled Hearts

"Love," said Mrs. Hazlett-Tutteridge, "makes the world go 'round."

Mrs. Hazlett-Tutteridge was entertaining at her big summer place. She had just admitted to her friends that there was truth in the report that she was to make a third venture into the sea of matrimony.

Two previous voyages on this marital sea had ended in the divorce courts. Perhaps Mrs. Hazlett-Tutteridge felt that she had to say something in extenuation, hence her remark.

Mrs. Lawlor came over to the bench on the terrace where Phil and Patty were whispering and clinking the ice in tall glasses of amber fluid.

"I saw you," Mrs. Lawlor said, shaking a finger at them, "and I knew by your expressions that you were saying sarcastic things about love."

"Didn't someone else once make a remark almost similar to that of Mrs. Hazlett-Tutteridge about love and the revolutions of the world?"

"Don't be so sarcastic, Phil. You two hand me a jolly laugh, because I know what's going to happen."

"Palmistry, astrology or cards?" Patty asked.

"Life—it's in the book. You two scoffers at the tender passions are going to fall in love."

"Shake!"

She and Phil solemnly shook hands.

"Ha-ha! Hold it!"

Mrs. Lawler flashed a little movie camera on them, turned the crank a few times and nodded.

Both Unchanged

"When you two are married," she said, "I shall have the best of these negatives enlarged, framed, and sent to you for a wedding present—a picture of Patty and Phil, possessors of absolutely hard-boiled hearts, shaking hands over a pact that single-blessedness is best and that they'll never marry—lovely wedding present!"

By the end of the season Mrs. Lawlor decided that she might have been somewhat hasty in believing that Phil and Patty would fall in love and marry.

At the end of the Florida season she was quite sure of it. Swimming, dancing, and various other pastimes that threw Phil and Patty together left them the same smiling, cynical, friendly sophisticates as ever.

Phil had no idea that, wading down Swift River up in Dixville Notch, he would see Patty. He thought she was in Europe.

And Patty, deftly casting a dry fly on a shaded pool, would have told you that she thought Phil was up in Alaska shooting those big bears.

Phil recognized her then, saluted and watched her whip the dry fly again, this time to hook a two-pounder and, after a proper time, lift in out with her net.

Then they shook hands.

"I'll be seeing you, now and then, Patty—but one fishes better alone.

"Right. I'm at the Notch Inn. And you?"

"Camping over at the Fork. Come over any time and see me cook. I'm all alone."

Patty did go over to the camp a week later. Phil found her there when he came back from the Sutton farm with eggs, cream and butter.

"Trout," he said, "rolled in cornmeal and salt and dropped in deep fat, have got everything else looking like plain chow when it comes to a delicacy."

"Show me."

He did. They sat down at the table out under a big yellow birch and devoured cornbread, trout and coffee.

Lost Child

They looked around and saw a youngster about 5.

"Just waiting for you, Old Timer. Come along," Phil said, and he rigged up a seat for the little chap.

"Don't know. Who are you, friend?" Phil asked the lad.

"Pudge?"

"Yeh— and I'm lost."

"There," Phil exclaimed, "I knew these story writers were all wet. They always make lost kids said they are 'losted.'"

"Lost, eh? Where were you going?"

Before dark Phil and Patty took the child up to the Sutton farm, knowing that Mr. Sutton could identify him.

"So there you are. I began to think you fell down a rat-hole," Sutton said when he saw the little fellow. He explained to Phil and Patty that the little chap was from the city.

"I take 10 kids every summer, two a week, to give 'em a vacation. I've got to change next year—a week isn't enough for a poor city kid. He was afraid to pick daisies or walk on the grass when he got here."

The next day Patty went over early and got Pudge, to take him for a ride and to the village store for candy.

They both arrived at the Sutton farm early one day and Sutton said, "Better make a picnic of it, folks. The kid's got to go back tomorrow."

"Go on — keep him another week, or we'll stake him to his board for the summer," Phil said:

"It isn't that. I'd board him all the time if I could, but the poor little cuss is up against it now."

"What's happened?"

"It seems he's an orphan, and his grandmother took care of him in the city. She runs a sort of newsstand. She died the other day."

"Died!"

Phil and Patty spoke almost in unison.

"Yes. I got a letter from the association that sends the kids out for vacations. It seems he's got to go back and be put in some institution, orphans' home or something—"

Mr. Sutton went in to get the letter.

"Hello there, Old Timer!" Phil said, lifting the boy up to his shoulder.

There was something in Phil's eyes that amazed Patty, a hint of sympathy to the verge of tears.

"Hello, Big Boy!" Patty said. She stroked his hand and turned and walked away, until she could get control of herself.

After they read it they decided on a picnic. They had it.

"Better more fun to have you pull together," Pudge said.

"Pudge, how would you like to come and live with me?" Patty asked.

"Like it—if Gram would let me."

"Your Gram has gone away—I know she'd be glad to have you live with me."

Sends Picture

"And to live with me, Old Timer?" he asked.

"Uh, huh, I do."

"But Pudge, I asked you first, dear," Patty pleaded.

"Pudge live with you—and you—"

"I suppose we could take turns—" Patty started to outline a plan, but Pudge seemed to sense some hitch.

"I live with both—uh-huh—nice!"

He leaned over and kissed Patty, then ducked back to Phil and gave him a playful punch in the arm.

"Huh, O' Timer?" Pudge asked.

"Listen, Pudge, there are certain ceremonies — er — that makes it better form to go through with, if a man and maid propose to live together. You ask Patty about it?"

"Huh?"

"Tell him, Pudge, than I can stand it if he can!"

"Aw, you're foolin'," Pudge said.

Mrs. Lawlor didn't hear of the marriage until the end of the summer, but she sent them the picture of themselves shaking hands. Across the bottom of the picture she had written:

"To a pair of hard-boiled hearts!"

10:30! MY STARS, IT TOOK THOSE DOODLES THREE SOLID HOURS TO TELL US THE LITTLE WE FOUND OUT ABOUT THEM THIS EVENING.
WHAT TOOK UP SO MUCH TIME IS THAT BOTH OF THEM HAVE A VERY BAD HABIT OF LOOKING UP AT THE CEILING FOR AT LEAST TWO MINUTES WHENEVER THEY ANSWER A QUESTION.
I NOTICED THAT, TOO, AND A NUMBER OF TIMES IT MADE ME FEEL — WELL, AS THOUGH SHE THOUGHT I WAS JUST INQUISITIVE WHAT AN ODD COUPLE.
THEY'RE BOTH VERY EASY-GOING. A GREAT DEAL LIKE US. QUIET, REFINED, AND STILL VERY DEMOCRATIC WITH THEIR EQUALS
I WISH I HAD HER EDUCATION... THE EASY WAY SHE ROLLS OUT BIG WORDS WITHOUT A MOMENT'S HESITATION
OH YES BIG WORDS ARE O.K. BUT LET'S NOT FORGET THAT THEY'RE USUALLY OVER THE AVERAGE PERSON'S HEAD
OH GEORGE, AT TIMES LIKE THIS EVENING I REALIZE THAT ONE OF OUR WEAKNESSES IS THAT WE WORRY TOO MUCH ABOUT WHAT THE AVERAGE PERSON THINKS OF US. WE SHOULD BE — WELL, OURSELVES.
YOU MEAN WE'RE TOO DEMOCRATIC. WELL I FELT THE SAME WAY ABOUT THAT THIS EVENING WHEN THE FOLKS UPSTAIRS SAT THERE WITH POKER FACES AND LET US PROVIDE MOST OF THE CONVERSATION.

Send in Your Solution for Unemployment and Get in on Popular Relief Bill!

We wish to thank our many readers who have unselfishly sent in solutions to the unemployment problem. It is our ambition to have a solution from every citizen in the United States, as it goes without saying that if everyone keeps writing letters there can be no unemployment. All of the suggestions received will be pasted together and introduced in Congress as a bill to end unemployment once and for all. Following are the prize letters snatched from the top of the pile:

It's All Done with Mirrors.

Sir:—

To abolish unemployment all we need is a law requiring the head of each family to wash the windows for his next door neighbor. Each person thus benefitted will in turn pay $8 for this service. This amicable chain plan can be continued indefinitely until the breweries start up on full time.

P. J. Q. Heady.

Excellent Idea, Excellently Stated.

Sir:—

I have given the matter a few moments' thought and decided that the present crisis is due to the fact that too many married women hold jobs. Why not a Presidential Proclamation declaring everybody divorced, thus remedying this evil automatically?

McKee Stewart.

Catch-as-Catch-Can Plan Has Merit

Sir:—

My suggestion may sound intricate, but that can be worked out later. I propose that every jobless man be commissioned as a motor cop, with the right to collect fines on presentation of ticket. Soon all motorists will become cops, thus leaving thousands of abandoned cars which can be used as collateral for farm loans.

Fred Edwards.

Acquisition of More Land Is Outstanding Need of West Point

AS CHAIRMAN of the House Committee on Military Affairs, Representative James, of Michigan, has introduced a bill providing for the purchase at a cost of $1,500,000 of 15,000 acres adjacent to the reservation of the West Point Military Academy.

Here are the four reasons given by the present superintendent, Maj. Gen. W. R. Smith, why the acquisition of this additional land is the outstanding need of the military academy today:

FIRST: In order to secure an adequate and pure water supply. West Point is now dependent upon a water supply that is privately owned, grossly inadequate and in danger of contamination unless immediate steps are taken to safeguard it.

SECOND: To establish a landing field for airplanes. The academy is without any landing field at present and it is necessary to send the cadets all the way to Langley Field, Virginia, during the summer in order to give them even the limited instruction in aviation that they now receive.

THIRD: To construct small arms and field artillery ranges absolutely essential for the instruction of the cadets in artillery, machine gun and rifle firing. Under existing conditions it is now necessary to send the cadets to distant posts during the summer for field artillery target practice.

FOURTH: To provide camp sites and maneuver grounds, which will be under the control of the superintendent, and available at all times for the training in the field that is an essential part of the instruction West Point must give if its high standards are to be maintained.

Advocated Adequate Military Academy

GEORGE WASHINGTON
NECESSARY ARTILLERY RANGES
ADEQUATE CAMP SITES
REQUIRED MANEUVER GROUNDS
NEEDED AVIATION FIELDS
WEST POINT'S CRAMPED QUARTERS
Nelson Harding

Not only Gen. Smith but every other general officer of the Army, from Gen. Pershing down to the youngest brigadier, is prepared to appear before the military committees of both Houses of Congress and appeal for the passage of the West Point emergency bill at the short session.

Urging the immediate passage of the James bill, Gen. Pershing says:

"If West Point is to continue to fill its mission of preparing its graduates for emergencies, greater facilities for the special training required must be provided."

IN BEHALF of the same measure, Maj. Gen. Fechet, chief of the Army Air Corps, will tell the Congress that:

"It is of paramount importance that the United States Military Academy be provided with an airplane landing field."

Surely these practical reasons for the immediate expansion of the West Point reservation will appeal to the common sense of every Senator and Representative in Congress.

But there is an additional reason that should also appeal to the patriotic sentiment of every Senator and Representative in Congress.

West Point was the first strong military post established by George Washington. At West Point was established the best garrison which the United States had in its early history. There a school of instruction for our Army engineers existed almost from the time West Point became a military post. Military instruction has been given at West Point in one form or another, ever since.

Year after year Washington urged upon Congress the formation of a "National Military Academy." It was a major recommendation of his last message to Congress. It was the subject of what was probably the last letter he ever wrote.

TWO days before his death in 1799, writing to Alexander Hamilton, George Washington said:

"The establishment of a military academy upon a respectable and extensive basis has ever been considered by me as an object of primary importance to the country and while I was in the chair of government I omitted no proper opportunity of recommending it to the attention of the Legislature."

Next year the government and people of the United States will commemorate the two-hundredth anniversary of Washington's birth.

Nothing that the government has yet done in preparation for this great event is as appropriate as would be the enactment of the James bill to enable the United States Military Academy at West Point to perform the high mission that George Washington gave it.

Lawmakers' Opportunity

Pennsylvania Legislature, Convening Today, Can Render Valuable Service, or Make Itself a Nuisance.

The General Assembly, convening today in Harrisburg, has an opportunity to make the session memorable for the valuable public service rendered.

On the other hand it may make itself a nuisance.

The struggle for factional advantage has been uppermost in the minds of some of the lawmakers of late. With the contests for office out of the way, it is to be hoped they will cease playing politics and devote themselves whole-heartedly to the service of the people.

Abolition of the Coal and Iron Police, so that corporation hirelings may no longer bully citizens in the name of the Commonwealth.

Modification of the present system of regulating public utilities, so that we may be relieved of such outrages as Pittsburgh's 25-cent bus fare.

Repeal or modification of the Blue Law, which makes it a misdemeanor to indulge in certain innocent amusements on Sunday.

Re-enactment of Pittsburgh's metropolitan charter bill.

Appropriation of funds for enlargement of state welfare institutions, such as the asylums at Polk and Warren and the training school at Morganza, which a Sun-Telegraph investigation showed to be badly overcrowded.

It is to be hoped the Legislature will do its work thoroughly and thoughtfully, but expeditiously; that it will waste no time on trivialities, and that it will set its face sternly against the creation of new crimes—that is, that it will refuse to pass bills forbidding things which, even if annoying, can best be handled otherwise than through statutory enactment.

Ably Handled

Detective Bureau and Courts Have Given a Gratifying Demonstration of Speed in Perry Bank Case.

The detective bureau and the courts have given a gratifying demonstration, in the case of the Perry State Bank robbery, of what can be done to speed up the wheels of justice.

The bank was robbed on December 13 and the bandits made a clean "get-away." In the meanwhile the detectives picked up a clue, followed it to New York, and arrested four men there, of whom three pleaded guilty to the robbery in Criminal Court yesterday.

Yet, with all the speed, the prosecution was conducted decently and in order. There has not been the slightest suspicion of "railroading" or "judicial lynching." The rights of the accused were scrupulously safeguarded.

The celerity with which the case has been handled cannot fail to impress other potential bandits.

Science as Mother's Aid

Mellon Institute Investigators Prove that Research Is Useful Even in Familiar Things.

The comprehensiveness of modern science, which regards nothing as alien to its province, is exemplified in a paper by Drs. H. M. Johnson, Marion M. Jacobsen and Carlyle F. Jacobsen, of Mellon Institute, read at the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Cleveland last Saturday.

They reported on a long series of experiments and observations, made in connection with the Simmons investigation of sleep, which demonstrated that if a baby is not getting enough rest an afternoon nap is better for him than lengthening his stay in bed at night.

To the average layman many scientific discoveries are not even of academic interest. Yet there is scarcely any branch of human activity that is not being subjected to the careful scrutiny of the searchers after knowledge.

REWRITING MATHEMATICS

By Archibald Henderson

It is commonly believed that the history of mathematics has been written with finality, by a host of investigators headed by Cantor, and that little remains to be told. This belief is constantly being upset nowadays, by discoveries among little known or recently found repositories of information. One of the most outstanding facts which, from time to time, come to light is that early peoples possessed mathematical knowledge of the most uneven and disparate sort.

In some respects, they would show themselves centuries in advance of their age; yet in other respects, they were extremely backward. The Greeks might show marvelous advance in geometry, and yet have no conception of the irrational or imaginary quantities, both of which are integral in the thinking and practice of today.

Take, for example, the subject of analytic or co-ordinate geometry, which is often familiarly called "conic sections" by college students. The founder of this subject is generally accepted by historians as the French philosopher and mathematician, Rene Descartes.

The subject bears the impress of his name as discoverer and founder, in being called cartesian geometry. It is a form of algebraic geometry, employing usually a pair of axes at right angles to each other, for reference in the representation of graphs or curves in a plane. A study of Euclid, in the original, shows that that great master employed the methods of cartesian geometry, notably in the study of the quadratic equation.

He determines the roots of special forms of the quadratic equation by geometric methods, scarcely distinguishable from the methods used many centuries later by Descartes. The Italian mathematician, Vieta also solved certain geometric problems by means of algebra, which is in essence the principle employed by Descartes. Vieta has been credited by some writers with the founding of the subject of algebraic geometry.

As Miller has recently pointed out, Descartes was far from establishing analytic geometry on the basis used at the present time. Indeed many of the fundamentals as well as the extreme refinements of the subject, were never used or even devised by Descartes. For example, he never used negative values for one of the coordinates, ordinarily measured along a horizontal line and called the abscissa, or part cut off.

As Miller observes: If our modern students of analytic geometry were not allowed the use of negative abscissas they woud find themselves greatly hampered, and if R. Descartes could take one of our modern final examinations closing a course in analytic geometry, with all the knowledge he possessed relating thereto while living, it is likely that most of our instructors would be inclined to flunk him. This statement is not intended to detract from his great mathematical abilities and deep insight, but it aims to convey a correct impression of some of the limitations of his actual knowledge along the lines whose development he influenced profoundly.

Two problems which have absorbed the attention of mathematicians for 20 centuries are: The Pythagorean proposition and the solution of the quadratic. One of the most remarkable of recent discoveries in the history of mathematics shows that, contrary to accounts in all the books, these two basic problems were understood and employed by the ancient Babylonians. Of 19 Babylonian problems employing the quadratic equation, 10 reveal the actual details of its use. Sometimes we are almost persuaded to believe that there is nothing new under the sun!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—This has been the leanest year in the memory of any living free lance writer. But the saturation point is reached. The worst is over. The boys and girls who crash the pulp paper magazines have dusted off their typewriters to bang out feverish yarns again.

During the hiatus, editors of romance, mystery and detective tales used up stories that had been purchased but deferred for one reason or another. Thus the fashioners of "pot boilers" could only dip into their reserve supply of cash—if any—and mark time.

Two "sensational" scriveners who averaged around $200 a week in affluent days did not sell a line for more than 10 months. Many turned to other jobs temporarily and still others abandoned fiction completely. Free lancing is always hazardous but few callings offer a greater emotional wallop.

Aside from the tingle of creating imaginary thrills, there is the romance in living by gambler's luck. The free lance does not write by order as do his more fortunate fellows. He writes and takes his chance. If his effort does not hit one bull's eye it may another.

The free lance has no assurance of regular income and is improvident but no class is so happy-go-lucky. They get up when they please, retire in the same manner and work as the spirit moves. And every new day may mark the coming of something unexpected, something new like the allegro of a sonata.

Nearly all, with the sale of the first yarn, gravitate to the easy bon-homie of such spots as The Village. There in attics of the faded old rooming houses they find "atmosphere." About them are the table d'hotes, waffle parlors, coffee shops and other confessionals.

With a sudden windfall they make first payments on some antiquated farm house in the wilds of Jersey or Connecticut and out of these rural migrations many "artistic villages" have been spawned. Later they may sneak over to Southern France and be discovered.

Union Railroad Terminals

Combined Facilities for Passengers and Freight Well Merit Public Approval

The following editorial, the fourth of a series, is reprinted from the editorial page of the New York American of January 16, 1930. It is reprinted because of its timeliness.

Hence there will be general agreement with the Interstate Commerce Commission's recommendation that, in the coming railroad consolidations, JOINT TERMINAL FACILITIES for all railroads in each large city shall be established.

All the railroads terminating on the west bank of the Hudson River could and should have been brought to Manhattan Island by tunnel to a JOINT passenger station.

Instead, the Pennsylvania Railroad was allowed to tunnel to Manhattan alone, leaving the five other roads standing, each with a separate passenger terminal, on the New Jersey shore—the Baltimore and Ohio, the Lehigh Valley, the Lackawanna, the Erie and the West Shore. The Baltimore and Ohio is now planning to enter Manhattan by a tremendously expensive bridge over the Hudson.

It takes a memory expert to recite the locations of New York passenger stations. And consider Chicago!

Freight cannot, like passengers, complain of separate railroad terminals, but it is just as much inconvenienced as passengers are. A merchant shipping a case of goods this afternoon by each of five railroads must send his dray to five different freight stations. If, as in some cities, the stations are inadequate and crowded, he must send five separate drays to be sure his shipments can be received before the stations are closed this evening and the freight trains made up.

What a convenience is a union freight station which receives all his shipments to all railroads! This convenience has resulted in the formation of scores of PRIVATE union freight terminals from Boston to Los Angeles.

The union terminal recommendation of the commission is the one that will meet universal approval. Prof. W. Z. Ripley, of Harvard, the leading railroad economist of the country, says:

"There are many admirable features of the plan, notably the proposal for open terminals—terminals, that is to say, not tied up to individual systems, but existing for the use of all. Nothing will promote the public interest more than such a plan carefully worked out for the separation of the main stems of the railways from the pick-up-and-delivery systems in and about the greater centers of population."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Just thinking about it won't necessarily bring misfortune, but the mental disturbance due to such thoughts puts you in line for almost anything.

Divided attention, lack of confidence and courage to carry on are responsible for defeated purpose in many instances.

Have you ever permitted the importance of this word "think" to sink in?
